

75,000 German Troops Fall in Savage Battle, Russians Claim

Nazis Abandon Frontal Attack On Leningrad

Slow Reduction by Gun-fire, Starvation Seen as New Plan.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS. Several Soviet field fortifications blocking the German advance on Leningrad were reported today to have been destroyed by intensive Stuka raids but there were other indications that the city's situation had improved.

There were some indications that this bettering of the northwestern Soviet position had been accomplished in considerable part by the continuing Red counter-offensive along the central front which was designed to lift some of the Nazi pressure from both Russian flanks.

Counterattacks Roll On. That counteroffensive, the Russians declared, was still rolling on uninterrupted in three columns.

In the bitter battle for the town of Yelnya on that front, which was concluded on Monday, Moscow estimated yesterday that German losses were from 75,000 to 80,000 in dead and wounded.

German military reports told of dive bombing attacks which silenced a number of Soviet anti-aircraft and artillery positions about Leningrad, cleared away field fortifications and caused extensive damage at the city's water works.

Boasts Toned Down. The Germans receded measurably, however, from their earlier claims that the city was imminently doomed and suggested that they might not try to storm it after all but probably would attempt to reduce it slowly by gun-fire, bombs and starvation.

It was acknowledged in Berlin that the Russians were still "shooting from all barrels" and that such hard-won positions as the Nazis had been able to occupy were sown with the waiting death hidden in thousands of Russian land mines.

It was admitted by German informants, in effect, that any frontal assault upon Leningrad would, under present circumstances at least, bring for the invaders a casualty roll so ghastly that Hitler's high command was not willing to contemplate it.

Another Division Routed. In the latest of a series of Soviet successes, it was claimed by Moscow, another German infantry division, the 29th, was routed and substantially destroyed in the area of Gomel, which lies about midway between Smolensk and Kiev.

Thousands of German dead, it was added, were left on the bitter trail and about 4,000 more died in a forced retreat across a river.

The Germans, speaking mainly of their thunderous cannon and aerial attacks on Leningrad and claiming also to have taken several thousand additional Russian prisoners in the far southern front about Odessa on the Black sea, said little of the center. The Berlin wireless, however, circulated reports attributed to certain "competent quarters" that Vyazma, 90 miles beyond and east of Smolensk and only 130 miles short of Moscow, had been taken.

School Board Does Paces for Governor

Education Body Acts To Take Over Barron School, Pay Off $25,000 Debt.

By LUKE GREENE.

Warming up with a vigorous session of calisthenics, the Governor sent his body-building State Board of Education through a tough round of mental gymnastics yesterday which resulted in three major actions.

To confused members of the board the session must have run something like this:

1. Hold your arms out straight, wiggle your fingers and kick 23 books off the library list on the grounds that their teachings are out of tune with real southern traditions.

Obediently and promptly the board followed through.

2. Bend over three times, touch your toes and bring David I. (Red) Barron's school into the state fold, pay off its $25,000 indebtedness and designate it as the school department's first experimental vocational trades school.

The board snapped through this routine with precision.

No Raises for Teachers.

3. Now inhale deeply three times and forget about raising teachers' salaries, for such a request is decidedly out of order.

Their tongues hanging out, the board couldn't resist.

The calisthenics began as soon as the meeting opened.

In his roamings in a downtown hotel, the Governor had met a physical culture expert, E. E. Edwards, who claimed

Survey of U. S. Civilian, Army Needs Ordered

Government Brings To Halt Expansion of Non-Defense Production.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—

The Supply Priorities and Allocations Board instructed its executive director, Donald M. Nelson, tonight to work out a complete schedule of the nation's military and civilian requirements in an effort to solve the problems of shortages of materials and of expansion of production facilities.

The board announced the action, which it termed a detailed planning of the defense program, after bringing to a full stop the expansion of civilian industries which would require large quantities of defense materials.

Simultaneously, the government moved to obtain vast new supplies of aluminum and magnesium for the defense effort by financing the construction of three new plants.

The board ordered Nelson to plan the program on a basis of accurate co-ordinate knowledge of military and civilian requirements and as far in advance as possible.

The schedule which Nelson will compile will include procurement needs of the Army, Navy and Air Force, and include also such goods as are to go to Great Britain and other lend-lease countries.

Both the military production scheduled and the statements of civilian requirements are to be broken down into schedules of the raw materials, labor and machinery needed for their production.

Long-Range Program.

"In calling for this long-range, all-inclusive survey of the nation's total needs under the defense program," the announcement said, "SPAB followed the view that there must be one authority to develop the official requirement figures on both levels, holding that there would be confusion otherwise, because the several parts of the requirement picture must be developed by separate agencies."

Leon Henderson, defense director of civilian supply, has been given control of establishment of automobile production quotas by the OPM.

The Automotive Industry Advisory Committee fixed a maximum passenger car production for August, September, October and November at about 74 per cent of the 1940 output during the same period.

Williams, Lieutenant W. R. Glenn, medical officer, and Ensign W. N. Clyatt. Witness Alvin Tipton, cousin of the dead man, is testifying. (Story on Page 2.)

Taylor Opens Vital Discussions Atlanta, DeKalb With Pope in Hour-Long Parley Schools to Open Classes Monday

Roosevelt's Interest in Welfare of World's People Rather Than Form of Government, as Such, Believed Expressed.

VATICAN CITY, Sept. 10.—(AP)—Myron C. Taylor, President Roosevelt's personal emissary, began an important exchange of views between the President and the Vatican today in two long, private audiences with Pope Pius XII and Luigi Cardinal Maglione, papal secretary of state.

There were indications that war and peace aims figured largely in the talks.

The President's envoy was understood in usually informed circles to have told the Pope that in so far as Soviet Russia was concerned, Mr. Roosevelt was more interested in the welfare of the world's peoples than in the form of government as such.

The urgency of Taylor's mission was indicated by the Pope's receiving him within 24 hours after his arrival by plane. They talked for one hour and 10 minutes alone in the pontiff's private library.

Cardinal Maglione interrupted a vacation in southern Italy and returned to the Vatican to talk with Taylor. Their conference lasted more than two hours and was said to have been a "tour de l'horizon" of the war and the European situation.

The talks today were only the beginning. Taylor is to see Cardinal Maglione again tomorrow and the Pope next week. The President's envoy, who flew to Rome with his wife despite his 67 years and a serious illness last year, intends to return to Washington to report more fully to the President than he can by cable.

Taylor declined to disclose what was said in the audiences. From other sources, however, it was learned that "the welfare of the peoples of various countries" was the keynote of the talks.

Reward Now $600 In White Mystery

Reward for information resulting in the finding of Professor J. E. White, missing principal of North Fulton High school, yesterday was increased to a total of $600, Hurd J. Crain, brother-in-law of the educator, announced.

No word as to Professor White's whereabouts has come since he dropped from sight Friday, August 29, although the police of the nation have been on the lookout for him.

Jere A. Wells, county school superintendent, and James L. Respass, county auditor, have been appointed trustees of the reward money which was contributed by the county teachers' association, of which White was president, the Peachtree Road Methodist church, and friends and relatives.

When last seen, Professor White was driving his 1940 Oldsmobile sedan, Georgia license number 1345-E.

President Met At Station by Secretary Hull

Activity Reflects Deep Concern Over Impact of Ship Sinkings.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—

President Roosevelt returned tonight from Hyde Park and the funeral of his mother to plunge immediately into activity reflecting deep concern over the impact of the war on this country.

Secretary of State Hull met the chief executive at the railroad station and drove with him through the oppressive heat to the White House. The secretaries of War and Navy also were called to the executive mansion for conferences tonight, in advance of Mr. Roosevelt's important radio report to the nation tomorrow, which was expanded from its original scope.

'Major Importance.'

Mr. Roosevelt's address tomorrow night undoubtedly will touch on the delicate relations between the United States on the one hand and Germany and Japan on the other. He authorized an announcement in advance that the speech would be of "major importance"—an unusual procedure in itself.

Originally he planned to speak 15 minutes. Now he expects to use 25.

The address will be broadcast over all networks at 9 o'clock (Atlanta time).

The chief executive gave all his attention to work which he had put aside for a few sad days, finding in it a measure of relief from his sorrow over the death of his mother on Sunday, a day after he arrived at Hyde Park for a weekend visit.

Five-Man Board.

His first action was to issue a proclamation which, in effect, will delay a strike which threatened to stop the nation's trains and deprive the country of essential transportation service at a time when such service is indispensable to the defense effort.

Mr. Roosevelt ordered creation of a five-man board to investigate differences over wages between the railroads and their workmen and report to him within 30 days. A strike must be delayed, in accordance with the railway labor act, until at least 30 days after the

Northwest Breezes Moderate Temperature

Cool air moving in from the northwest is moderating the scorching, above-normal temperature which Atlantans have felt during the first part of September, the weather bureau promised yesterday.

Today's forecast is for "moderate" temperatures, considerable cloudiness and probably no rain. The temperature extremes forecast are 65 and 84 degrees. Yesterday's were 70 and 85.

Two Foremost Labor Leaders In Norway Shot by Germans

STOCKHOLM, Sept. 11, (Thursday)—(INS)—Immediately after clamping a state of siege on the Oslo area to stem rebellious strikes with the threat of death, the German conquerors of Norway decapitated that country's once-powerful labor movement by executing its two foremost leaders, Norwegian labor leaders, according to a summary Nazi court martial said early today.

Arrested and swiftly condemned by a summary Nazi court martial of violating a new decree forbidding "Communist-agitated" labor strikes, Viggo Pansteen, secretary of Norway's General Federation of Trades Unions, and Rolf Vikstrom, chairman of the Trades Union Council, were put to death before German firing squads yesterday afternoon, according to reports from Oslo.

Throughout Oslo and its environs, meanwhile, German military guards and Nazi-controlled police forces were fully mobilized and were reported patrolling the streets, squares and outskirts of the Norwegian capital which lay tensely silent under a rigid curfew requiring all civilians to remain indoors between 5 o'clock at night and 8 o'clock in the morning.

Reinforced German troops of the Oslo garrison were reported to have flung a solid cordon around the Norwegian metropolis, halting all who sought to enter the city, except those with special military permits.

At the same time, a drastic "purge" of Norwegians, especially in the labor unions which embrace a membership of 300,000 workers, was understood to have been launched, with numerous officials of the national federation and its affiliated bodies placed under military arrest.

Auditorium Gets New Sloping Floor At Bargain Price

By HAROLD MARTIN.

When opera comes to town, Alderman Raleigh Drennon finds pressing business somewhere else. Alderman Raleigh Drennon has no ear for music, and the sound of a coloratura soaring through an aria gives him an acute pain, like a toothache.

Yet that does not keep Alderman Drennon from clinging firmly to the belief that if anybody is silly enough to pay good money to hear, and see, an opera, they ought to get their money's worth. They ought to get an eyeful as well as an earful.

Which gradually brings us up to a discussion of the city auditorium and the new sloping floor which Alderman Drennon, by prodigious labors, has laid down there.

The floor at the auditorium used to be flat. It was so flat, you had to crane your neck, if you sat in the back of the house, to see more than the top of the soprano's head. If you sat way back in the back of the house, you couldn't see that much. You couldn't see anything. In fact, there were 500 seats nobody would buy at all, because you might as well have stayed home and listened to the radio, so far as seeing anything was concerned.

Chairman of Committee.

This didn't seem right to Alderman Drennon, chairman of the auditorium committee or city council. He had been fooling around the auditorium since he was just a little chap. He remembered when they used to take up the old flat wooden floor to hold horse shows and indoor circus on the dirt floor underneath, back in 1909 and 1910 and thereabout.

He kept thinking the auditorium ought to have a slanting floor, so people in the back could see as well as people in the front. But he couldn't get anybody interested in it much.

Then opera came along this year and Alderman Drennon broke his rule and went. He went because he and Burt Wellborn, manager of the auditorium, had pulled a trick on Mayor LeCraw. They had picked the mayor's seats for him. They put him back there in no-man's land where you couldn't see a thing except the back of the man's neck in front of you.

They peeped through the curtains and watched the mayor squirm and wiggle and half stand up, trying to see what was going on on the stage. And they listened, solemnly, when the mayor came tearing out after the opera mad as a wet hen.

Gets Green Light.

"Raleigh," he said "we've got to get a sloping floor in this place. You see about it."

That was all Drennon needed. He sat down and drew up some blueprints. He designed the sort of floor he wanted. It had to rise five feet in 100 feet, so that the man sitting on the back row was in a chair a foot above the stage level, and his eyes were maybe four feet higher than that, depending upon his height.

It had to be a floor that could be taken up, quickly, so that things like the Shrine Convention could be held there, and if anybody wanted to dance, they could without having to puff up and downhill on a sloping floor. So Drennon designed it in 10-foot squares of hard maple, that would lock together smooth as your living room floor, but which could be taken up and put down in 10 hours flat by a crew of 12 men.

It had to be a strong floor, so nobody would fall through and sue the city, so Drennon designed the girders to hold it. They are made of steel, and each one, which must support only 2,000 pounds, will support 122,714 pounds, according to tests made at Georgia Tech. So it seems safe enough.

Builds It Himself.

When he had his plans all drawn up, he started looking for somebody to do the work. He got estimates ranging from $10,000 to $13,000. He said nuts to that. He would build it himself. So he went over to Bremen Steel Company and told them to save him 16,000 pounds of steel. He told R. O. Campbell to earmark 10,000 feet of pine for him. Then he got his gang together and got to work. He put on a pair of overalls and got right down there with the boys. He watched them cut every piece and fit it. He saw the job done like he wanted it. Then he figured up what it had cost. It came to $6,000.

Yesterday, in a state of high excitement, he had the unveiling. He invited everybody down to see his baby. A lot of people, representing the music clubs and the garden clubs and various organizations which use the auditorium, came and took a look and found everything to be just fine.

Acoustics Improved. Charlie Sheldon, the city organizer, came down and found Drennon had done something he didn't know he was doing. He had improved the auditorium's acoustics tremendously. "Listen," Sheldon would say, clapping his hands, and everybody would listen. "Hear that resonance. One and a half seconds more resonance than we had before. That means music, a singer's or a speaker's voice, has some life to it now."

BEFORE—Here's the way it used to be before the new sloping floor was placed in the city auditorium. If the ladies in front wore big hats—such as Mrs. Murdoch Euen, Mrs. T. Z. Anderson and Mrs. Raleigh Drennon wear above—people on the row behind had to crane their necks to see—as Mrs. E. Raymond Johnson, Mrs. W. J. Zahn and Dr. Louie D. Newton are doing above, to illustrate the way it worked.

AND AFTER—Now that Raleigh Drennon and the rest of the members of the auditorium committee have put down that $6,000 sloping floor, which enables everybody to see, no matter where he is sitting, everything is a lot better, as the picture above illustrates. The new floor, which can be taken up or put down in a jiffy, even helps the acoustics by acting as a sort of sounding board, giving more resonance.

Grand Jury Backs Move To Increase Powers of Chief

By WILLARD COPE.

The Fulton county grand jury threw its full weight late yesterday behind the effort of Councilman J. Allen Couch and his associates to give the chief of police full authority over his department.

Specifically, it urged passage of an ordinance, sponsored by Couch and three other members of council, described briefly as making the official "chief in fact as well as in name."

The action followed nearly eight hours of almost continuous sessions, during which the grand jury heard from all officials involved, and all factions, including Mayor LeCraw, Chief Hornsby, Couch and his three associates of the so-called "Big Four," opposing the administration, and four of the five members of the police committee of council.

Chief Developments.

Among chief developments of the day were:

1. Mayor LeCraw offered the grand jury statistics compiled by the Federal Bureau of Investigation showing increased crime in Atlanta.

2. Declaration by Couch, Alderman Ed A. Gilliam and Frank Reynolds and Councilman Frank Wilson, that the ordinance would solve present difficulties between the chief and the police committee.

3. Assertion afterward by Couch that "only through backing up an able and efficient chief of police can proper conditions be created within the department."

4. Declaration by Councilman George L. Lyle, of the police committee, that "the grand jury could best help the situation by keeping out of it," pointing out three grand juries "in a row" have gone at length into the question.

5. Emphasis by Councilman Howard Haire, of the police committee, upon the position that the committee is not seeking to restrict Chief Hornsby but merely to make appointments which, he pointed out, has historic backing.

Public Hearing.

The ordinance in question will be considered at a public hearing at 8 o'clock Friday night by the ordinance committee at the city hall.

Text of the grand jury's declaration follows:

"The members of this grand jury believe that morale and discipline are necessary for the efficient operation of any department of government."

"For many years the Atlanta Police Department has been the subject of controversy because of the desire of political factions to control appointments as part of the so-called spoils system."

"We recommend that city council take such action and pass or secure the necessary laws to put this department beyond the scope of politics to the end that integrity and efficiency shall be the basis of leadership and advancement for all positions from the chief to the patrolman."

Ordinance Approved.

"This grand jury has before it a copy of an ordinance now pending before the ordinance committee of city council, the effect of which ordinance would be to strengthen the control of the chief of police, whoever he may be, over his department, and we endorse this proposed ordinance in its entirety, and strongly urge the city council to pass this ordinance and thereby give public evidence of their determination to support the chief of police as long as he is honestly and efficiently running his department for the best interests of the city of Atlanta."

"E. S. PAPY, Acting Foreman."

"JOHN C. TOWNLEY, Secretary."

The grand jury also heard briefly from Lieutenant C. D. Hardeeman, whose post as secretary to the chief has been under questioning by the police committee.

Walton Farmers Selling Peppers

Special to THE CONSTITUTION. MONROE, Ga., Sept. 10.—Walton county farmers continue to ship their pimiento peppers to the Continental Packing Company in Macon. Weekly shipments of several hundred pounds are sent to that firm, which has signed contracts with the farmers last spring to buy all the peppers grown by them.

To date 13,027 pounds have been shipped, representing the production of approximately 200 acres, grown by 30 farmers. Of the pounds shipped the farmers receive 2c per pound or $40 per ton.

J. Booth Williams, who is in charge of transporting the peppers to Macon, has harvested 3,147 pounds from 12 acres, which is below the average production. Although this is the first year Walton farmers have attempted to grow the plants, and thus far very little profit has been realized, a few of the farmers are still optimistic and expect to harvest several hundred more pounds, as they bear until frost.

STATE PATROL CHANGES. LAGRANGE, Ga., Sept. 10.—Announcement is made today of the change of personnel in the office of the state patrol here. Trooper H. A. Pool has arrived to replace Trooper Charles E. Davidson, who has been transferred to Toccoa.

Naval Board Probes Death Of Sailor Here

Navy Investigation Is First of Kind Ever Held in Atlanta.

First naval board of investigation to be held in Atlanta convened here yesterday to investigate the death of Seaman H. L. Sago, A. W. O. L. sailor from the U. S. S. Idaho who died at Grady hospital Monday of injuries suffered Saturday night when he plunged from the sixth-floor window of the Kimball House.

Seeking to determine the circumstances under which Sago met his death, the board, made up of Lieutenant Commander C. D. Williams, senior officer; Lieutenant D. G. Jackson, Lieutenant W. R. Glenn, medical officer, and Ensign W. N. Clyatt, questioned a number of witnesses as to the circumstances surrounding Sago's death.

The convening of a board of investigation, it was pointed out, was customary in the death of any member of the service. The board, a fact-finding body only, submits its findings to the commandant of the Sixth Naval District without giving a decision.

Only one witness gave testimony to indicate the sailor's death might have been the result of violence. Alvin Tipton, a cousin who talked with Sago at Grady hospital, told the board Sago, shortly before he died, said a "man who had it in for him" had struck him on the head and pushed him out the window.

Detective H. C. Newton, of the city police homicide squad, who investigated the case, said he found no evidence of Sago having met with violence.

Miss deGive Gets National Nutrition Post

Atlanta Woman To Help Launch Test Programs.

Miss Mary L. de Give, of Atlanta, former assistant in the sociology department of Wellesley College, has been named to the staff of M. L. Wilson, national nutritional co-ordinator.

The appointment grew out of a special community study undertaken last summer in Bath, N. C., in which Miss de Give took a prominent part.

On the basis of this study, which investigated the nutritional status of the community from the point of view of the cultural pattern or food habits, will be the basis for a six-month nutritional test program in several different communities.

On the basis of findings, a national nutritional program will be worked out. Miss de Give will help launch the test programs, and will serve as a participant observer as they are carried out.

Miss de Give, while assisting in the sociology department of Wellesley College during the past year, obtained her masters degree from Harvard and passed her general examinations for the Ph.D. degree.

She is a member of the American Sociological Society, the Eastern Sociological Society, the Rural Sociological Society, the American Academy of Political and Social Science, and the American Association of University Women. She is the daughter of Mrs. J. L. de Give of Atlanta.

Tobey, vice president Appalachian Coals, Inc., Cincinnati; Luther H. Randall, Atlanta; R. E. Howe, president Appalachian Coals, Inc., Cincinnati; Roy Carson, traffic manager for the Harlan, Southern Appalachian and Hazard Coal Operators' Association, Raleigh, and W. W. $50,000 Suit Filed In Auto Accident

Death of a young woman in an automobile crash near Charlotte, N. C., in the early morning of September 14, 1940, was reflected in a suit for $50,000 brought here yesterday against the General Motors Sales Corporation with Atlanta headquarters, and Cleve Webb, a salesman, of Gastonia, N. C., D. R. Current, of Gastonia, father of Blondine Current, the victim, charged that Webb recklessly drove an automobile owned by the company and in which his daughter and another couple were riding. He accused Webb of driving on the left side of highway 29-A, just outside Charlotte, and causing a head-on collision with another automobile.

Attorney E. E. Carter, of Atlanta, was listed as associate counsel for Current.

Cafe Grading Plan Dropped

National emergency and priorities for construction material yesterday were blamed by city council's health and sanitation committee for abandonment of a proposal to grade Atlanta restaurants, cafes and other eating places on the basis of the manner in which they conform to new sanitary regulations.

A subcommittee told committee members that an investigation had convinced them that owners of such businesses cannot procure necessary materials to remodel their establishments in conformity with the proposed regulations and recommended that no action be taken at this time.

ORIENTAL SPLENDOR—Bedecked in fez and color, here is a part of the six uniformed organizations of the Atlanta Yaarab Temple which will be host to the Southeastern Shrine Association convention beginning here Friday. This picture of the Atlantans was taken last June when the Shriners gathered in Indianapolis for their big get-together, but there will be some 65 brightly uniformed units strutting along Atlanta streets here Friday and Saturday during the nobles parade. Seventeen Shrine temples in eight states will be represented.

First Caravan of Nobles Arrives Tonight

Potentate W. Frank Luckiesh, official host of the Southeastern Shrine Association meeting, and Past Potentate Barnes E. Sale, general chairman in charge of all arrangements for entertaining the host of Shriners visiting the city, accompanied by Yaarab's Million-Dollar Band and Oriental Band, will meet the first caravan of nobles and ladies arriving for the convention at the Terminal station this evening at 6:40 when a special train arrives bringing a delegation of around 200 from Charlotte, North Carolina. Numerous prominent nobles from various temples will arrive during the day by motor, train and airplane. Among them will be president of the association, Past Potentate Henry H. Cole, of Egypt Temple, Tampa; First Vice President John M. Rodgers, past potentate of Alhambra Temple, Chattanooga, and Fifth Vice President Junius W. Dessauer, Oriental guide of Jerusalem Temple, New Orleans. Widespread interest in the meeting Friday and Saturday has grown during the past week and over 100 late requests for hotel accommodations met with information that late comers would have to take their chances in obtaining accommodations in hotels outside the center of the city.

Nashville said Governor Prentice Cooper was out of the city. Attorney General Roy Beeler said a letter from Georgia's Governor was turned over to him the first of this week but he had had no opportunity to study the matter and therefore could not say anything. A committee of the Georgia legislature is preparing to make a survey of the line between Tennessee and Georgia. The committee contends that the boundary as observed at present is south of the true boundary which, they say, is the 35th parallel.

The State Highway Department has been called upon to make the survey, but Chief Engineer M. L. Shadburn said yesterday the matter had not yet been presented officially to the highway board. Information compiled by Recorder Frank A. Cundell indicated that in addition to the unexpected large number of nobles who would attend the meeting, over 250 ladies will be in the caravans. While the entertainment of Shriners will be of the conventional type at such gatherings, especial attention will be given to entertaining the ladies.

Among the events planned for the ladies will be a magnificent style show sponsored by Davidson-Paxon at 3:45 Friday afternoon immediately following the day parade and Saturday afternoon at 3:30 another style show will be given by Rich's, Inc., followed by a tea for the guests. Officials and representatives of the Southeastern Association, past potentates of visiting temples and their ladies will register at the Ansley hotel, while members of the uniformed organizations, unattached nobles and their ladies will register at the Henry Grady hotel.

Britain Pledges Georgia Threat Not To Misuse U.S. Supplies

Nazis Blamed for Rumors of Extended World Trade.

LONDON, Sept. 10.—(P)—The British government, moving to spike what was unofficially termed a German propaganda campaign to promote distrust over operations of the lease-lend act, assured the United States today it would make certain that American goods were not used to bolster or extend British world trade at the expense of United States business.

This was done in a White Paper, accompanied by an official statement of the British board of trade, which was described by a reliable informant as but one in a number of actions prepared "to prevent Germany from using lease-lend grumbling as the thin edge of a wedge to pry Britain and the United States apart and hamper the Allied war effort."

Already, he said, unfounded allegations were being spread here that the United States was trying to use lease-lend to keep Britain from exporting anything so that American exporters could steal British foreign markets, while in the United States the story went to the effect that Britain was accepting lease-lend goods and at the same time sending British goods to South America to steal United States trade.

"Actually," he added, "our exports to South America have fallen off considerably, but the security departments won't let us give figures because they might give too much information to German sea raiders."

'Chutists To Be Treated As Spies by Finland

HELSINKI, FINLAND, Sept. 10.—(P)—Parliament approved a law today providing that henceforth enemy parachutists captured behind the Finnish lines would be accorded the same treatment as spies.

(Death before a firing squad is the usual fate of captured spies in time of war.)

One of Biggest Convoys Reaches Britain Safely

LONDON, Sept. 10.—(P)—One of the largest convoys ever to cross the Atlantic recently reached a British port, it was learned on reliable authority tonight, without loss of a single ship or casualty to any man in the convoy or its escort.

The convoy's gigantic load of freight has been unloaded and dispersed from the port.

With the opening of the schools now only a few days off, the board of education has practically completed the roster of teachers, according to Dr. A. G. Cleveland, superintendent. The opening date is Monday, September 15.

U. S. Crossing On Belligerent Ships Allowed

State Department Lifts Ban for Americans in Britain.

LONDON, Sept. 10.—(P)—American citizens in Britain may now embark for home on belligerent ships if they so wish, Acting U. S. Consul Glenn Abbey announced today in disclosing a relaxation of previous state department regulations against such travel. "You are advised," said the announcement, "that the Department of State has now given permission for the passports of American citizens to be validated for return to the United States either direct or via Canada as well as via Lisbon. Such a journey would be entirely at the traveler's own risk."

An embassy official remarked in elaboration: "This means that United States citizens can now get home any way the British can get them home." (In Washington, Secretary Hull explained that the new ruling was not a blanket authorization for American travel on belligerent ships or planes, but would be limited to provide a way home for Americans who have been marooned abroad for a long time.)

In the past, the only means for most Americans in Britain to get home was to take a plane to Lisbon, Portugal, and then cross the Atlantic by American or other non-belligerent ships or by Clipper plane. Many have thus been prevented from leaving, for plane seats to Lisbon have often not been available because of the demands of officials and others holding priority and space on ships has been far short of demand.

It was said reliably that the State Department in Washington had rejected a suggestion originating in the embassy here that American citizens be sent to Iceland aboard British boats and then be taken home by escorted American vessels.

Some 5,000 Americans are understood to be in the United Kingdom. Those who are naturalized were warned that they might lose citizenship if they did not now prepare to go home, since such citizens are forbidden with certain exceptions to live in foreign countries beyond a specified time.

Mrs. Peterkin Jr. Is Found Dead

FORT MOTTE, S. C., Sept. 10.—(AP)—Coroner D. E. Hildebrand, of Calhoun county, said he found the body of Mrs. William Peterkin, Jr., hanging early today from a joist in a second-floor room of her home here.

The former Miss Elfreida Barrow, of Savannah, Mrs. Peterkin was the daughter-in-law of Mrs. Julia Peterkin, well-known author, whose home is near that of her son's.

The coroner said that Mrs. Peterkin was hanging by a bridge which had been thrown over a joist in an unfinished room. He said that he found a chair from which he said the woman had apparently stepped.

No inquest will be held, Hildebrand said, unless subsequent information should indicate some conclusion other than suicide.

Mrs. Peterkin is survived by her husband, an extensive farmer, and a young son, William Peterkin III.

Flying Tackle Photography, Ends Sprint of Garden Club Purse Snatcher Leader Dies

Ex-Grid Player Brings Down Thief After Girl Gives Chase.

How a flying tackle by a former North Carolina State University football player captured a six-foot-tall purse-snatcher who was being pursued by a plucky Atlanta girl was disclosed yesterday in Fulton superior court when the purse-snatcher, Johnnie Jones, Negro, was sentenced to 15 to 20 years on robbery charges.

The prosecution was handled by Assistant Solicitor Quincy Arnold. Testimony revealed that the would-be victim was Miss Mary Lee Daniel, of a Milledge avenue address, employed in a downtown office as a secretary.

According to the story told in court, Miss Daniel had left the Cracker ball park after the all-star game last July 7 and was walking up Ponce de Leon avenue when her purse was snatched. She immediately gave chase, as the man ran with the purse.

Pursuit had extended to Kenesaw avenue, just off Ponce de Leon avenue, where Howard Spruell, former center for the "Wolf Pack," was leaving the home of a friend at whose house he had been listening in to the all-star game.

Spruell saw the Negro swerve across the street, with the girl in pursuit. Without waiting to learn what it was all about, Spruell let go with a flying tackle that brought the Negro down so hard he skidded 20 feet across the street. The purse was recovered and Jones was arrested.

Willis McCrary To Be Buried This After- noon.

Willis McCrary, well-known Atlanta photographer, died yesterday at his home at 118 Peachtree Hills avenue. He had been in ill health for two years.

He was a past president of the Atlanta Photographers' Club and of the Southeastern Photographers' Association. Many of his photographs have been exhibited throughout America and abroad.

He also was active in men's garden club work, having won many prizes at exhibitions held by the Atlanta Garden Club and the Georgia Dahlia Society.

Surviving are his wife, the former Pearl Foster; two brothers, L. D. McCrary, of Rome, Ga., and A. W. McCrary, of Tallahassee, Fla., and several nieces and nephews.

Funeral services will be held at Spring Hill at 4 o'clock this afternoon, the Rev. Paul Turner and Dr. Wallace Rogers officiating. Burial will be in Crown Hill cemetery.

Five New Movies Open Run In Atlanta Theaters Today

Billings Include Air Drama, Bernard Shaw Play, Fur Trade Adventure, Domestic Tangle and Fight Picture.

By DUDLEY GLASS.

New deal all around—or mostly—in Atlanta flicker shows this week. The program looks more than usually interesting. "Major Barbara," the new Bernard Shaw picture, starts today at the Grand. "Dive Bomber" opens at the Fox. The Rialto starts "Our Wife," with Melvyn Douglas and Ruth Hussey. The Paramount starts a new one—"This Woman Is Mine." "Knockout" runs three days at the Capitol.

The holdover is "When Ladies Meet," switched to the Rhodes. "Dive Bomber" at Fox. New film at the Fox, "Dive Bomber," which starts today, is said to be different from all the long string of flying pictures which all the studios have made. It is in technicolor. Principal figures are Fred MacMurray, Errol Flynn and a new starlet, Alexis Smith. First of all, it deals with a completely new subject, the work of specialists of which there are a mere handful in the country today. These are the flight surgeons, medical scientists out to solve the mysteries of the stratosphere. For planes and plane motors have been advanced so far by man that man himself is not physically or mentally equipped to keep up with them. Therefore the dread "black out" of dive bomber pilots, altitude sickness, pilot fatigue and other bewildering ailments, all serious, that have been revealed only since planes were made powerful enough to take man 20,000 feet and 50,000 feet into the air.

Much of the exterior work on the picture was done at the United States Naval Air Base, San Diego, where every facility, every plane, was made available to the Warner Brothers Company. Most difficult production problem was to get actual scientific equipment, all practical, such as that in use at the Wright Field Flight Surgeon Laboratories, Dayton, Ohio, where most such work in the country is done today. Some of this equipment was obtained on loan from Wright Field officials.

"Major Barbara" Opens. Bernard Shaw's famous "Major Barbara," transcribed for the screen with the cynical old Irish author and dramatist doing his own dialogue, opens today at Loew's Grand. It is said to be as good as "Pygmalion," and it presents the same leading woman—Weedy Hiller. Rex Harrison is the romantic interest—with Miss Hiller—and Robert Morley, in whistles, plays her father. Morley did a wonderful job in "Marie Antoinette," with Norma Shearer. It was made partly in England and partly in Hollywood—after the English studios were bombed. The cast came over to the Pacific coast to finish the film.

Major Barbara is in the army—the Salvation Army. Rex Harrison, an idle young professor, falls for her beauty and joins the army, beating a drum. Her father, Morley, is a hard-boiled old manufacturer of munitions. He proves munitions are pretty important if a nation is going to fight.

New One at Para. Nobody ever agrees with me about a picture. I was counting on seeing "Kiss the Boys Goodbye" again at the Paramount this week, but the Fox didn't send it there. It wasn't pulling them in. It's a story of a voyage around the Horn back in 1810 to establish the American fur trade on the Pacific coast.

The ship is manned by a cut-throat crew. Captain Breenan—who can be tough—and matters become worse when a beautiful stowaway, Carol Bruce, is discovered in the hold. There are foreigners and tough guys and Indians and storms and mists and decks and all that. With Tone protecting the lovely stowaway from man, wind and water. Sounds like a thriller.

"Our Wife" at Rialto. "Our Wife," which comes to the Rialto theater today for an opening engagement of one week, is described by all who have seen it as one of the funniest, rowdiest and cleverest romantic comedies to come to a local screen in some time. It is the story of the battle between two women for one man. The man is Melvyn Douglas, the women Ruth Hussey and Ellen Drew. The winner, of course, gets the man—at the end. The other gets a spanking—in the end. John M. Stahl produced and directed the picture for Columbia, from a play of the same title written by Lillian Day and Lyon Mearson. The whole story is packed with romance, comedy, suspense and swift action.

In addition to the three stars there is a cast of featured players including Charles Coburn, John Hubbard, Harvey Stephens, Theresa Harris and many others. Scenes are laid on shipboard.

Clark Contends Movie Industry Is Monopoly

Says Controlling Group
Seeks To Plunge U. S.
Into War.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—(AP)—Senator Clark, Democrat, Missouri, contended in testimony before a Senate sub-committee today that the motion picture industry was a "monopoly controlled by a half dozen men" who were determined to "plunge this nation into war."

The Missouri senator made the assertion in urging an investigation of what he called moving picture propaganda, which he said, was being directed at motion picture audiences "to arouse their emotions and make them clamor for war."

Clark's testimony drew from Wendell Willkie, 1940 Republican Presidential nominee and counsel for the film industry, an assertion that the Missouri senator had failed to produce any evidence of propaganda and was seeking to "prejudice the public with his monopoly charge."

"After this charge falls of its own weight," Willkie said in a statement, "the isolationists will have another charge, for they obviously are determined to use this opportunity to fight with whatever weapons they can find, the foreign policy of the country."

Willkie renewed an earlier appeal to the committee to suspend further hearings until it had seen the moving pictures objected to by Clark and Senator Nye, Republican, North Dakota, co-author of the investigation proposal.

Sabbath School Offerings Help Mission Work

Adventist Program Supported 90 Per Cent by Such Funds.

The 10,000 Seventh Day Adventist missionaries scattered throughout the world are 90 per cent supported by offerings in the Sabbath school, Elder O. D. Cardy reported yesterday to the Georgia-Cumberland Conference, in session here at the Wesley Memorial Methodist church.

He said that the per capita gifts amounted to 16 cents. He added that, in the last period reported, the conference paid $195,000 in tithes and $36 per member for missions.

The Adventists, who recognize Saturday as the Sabbath, heard Elder F. A. Stahl describe some of his experiences as a missionary among Indians of the upper Amazon. Earlier Mrs. J. F. Wright discussed her work in establishing homes for girls in Africa. Elder D. A. Ochs gave a spiritual talk and Elder J. F. Wright, in a special message to ministers, told of the belief of Adventists in the second coming of Christ.

Rites Held at Ocilla For Victim of Crash

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION. OCILLA, Ga., Sept. 10.—Funeral services for Emil S. Clifton, Ocilla resident for 37 years and secretary and treasurer of the Ocilla Oil and Fertilizer Company, who was fatally injured Sunday night in an automobile accident, were held here today.

Mr. Clifton was returning to Ocilla from Reidsville when the crash between his car and a truck loaded with bananas occurred near Baxley.

Mr. Clifton is survived by his wife; one son, James Clifton, of Jackson, Miss.; one daughter, Mrs. John Smythe, of Providence, R. I., in Panama and in New York.

Add to this exceptional feature attraction a group of splendid short subjects which Manager Murray has selected and you get a new Rialto program that may well compete with any of recent months.

'Knockout' at Capitol.

Those who like their movies packed with action and thrills will probably head towards the Capitol Theater today, when "Knockout" opens. It is the story of a fighter who was terrific in the ring but a setup as far as women were concerned.

The role of the slugger who led with his heart and nearly took the count because of it, is played by Arthur Kennedy, the lad who made quite a name for himself as Cagney's brother in "City for Conquest." Starring opposite him in the role of his wife, is vivacious Olympe Bradna.

Others in the cast are Virginia Field, Anthony Quinn, Cliff Edwards and Vera Lewis. Special added attractions will include a travelogue, "Winter in Eskimo Land"; a cartoon, "Porky's Prevue," and a new issue of Pathe News.

'When Ladies Meet.'

"When Ladies Meet," the Rachel Crothers' white-lie-and-tails society drama, is transferred today from the Grand to the Rhodes.

It presents four stars—Joan Crawford, Robert Taylor, Greer Garson and Herbert Marshall, with Spring Byington helping along. The story is about two women and two men—a lover and a husband. And the wives and the sweethearts all meet and have a swell time—while it lasts.

The Pediatric Society in a recent meeting passed a resolution holding it inadvisable to open the schools until all danger of polio had passed.

H. E. Paddock Appointed to Captain Rank

Former Tech R. O. T. C.
Officer Was Here
Three Years.

President Roosevelt has appointed 12 Naval captains to the rank of rear admiral and 147 commanders, including Hubert E. Paddock, former executive officer of the Georgia Tech R. O. T. C. unit, to captain, the Navy Department announced yesterday.

Captain Paddock, who left Georgia Tech in 1939 to take command of a destroyer division in the Pacific, was stationed here three years. He was graduated from the Naval Academy at Annapolis in 1915 and is 49 years old. The new rear admirals, Associated Press dispatches said, included the President's chief Naval aide, Captain John Reginald Beardsall, 54, of Orlando, Fla.

At the City Hall

The Atlanta police band last night played a concert for patients of Battle Hill Tuberculosis sanitarium. Marches and other selections were given.

City council's finance committee was called to meet at 3 o'clock this afternoon in a notice sent out yesterday by B. Graham West, city comptroller.

Dr. J. C. Burch, superintendent of Battle Hill Tuberculosis sanitarium, will leave today for Washington to attempt to iron out obstacles in the way of starting a $90,000 building construction and repair program with WPA aid. A new service building costing about $60,000 is included among the projects contemplated.

Mayor LeCraw yesterday was studying a new contract between the city and the United States Housing Authority, through which the authority will pay about $37,000 annually into the municipal treasury for services furnished the low-cost housing projects. Last year, the city collected about $9,000 from the same source, but the mayor insisted on a revision of the old agreement.

ATLANTA, GA., SEPT. 11, 1941.

Call for Economy

Fulton county's taxable values for 1941 show an increase of approximately $15,000,000. Which is gratifying indication of business prosperity and great activity in the building industry.

Increased taxable values mean an increase in government revenue for the county. In this instance, if the tax rate remains the same, 13.5 mills, it will mean about $202,500 more for the county commissioners to expend in public services.

It is sincerely to be hoped that this increase in revenue will not result in a wild spurge of unnecessary expenditures, wage hikes for county employees and employment of additional, and unnecessary, county workers. Too often, in the past, has this been the result of higher tax revenue.

There are many improvements, all of which cost money, urgently needed in Fulton county. But, at this time, it is but logical wisdom to think long before adding to governmental outlay. By necessity the federal government is spending by tens of billions every year. The national debt is increasing by leaps and bounds. The congress has enacted a new tax bill that will multiply the sums taken from the pockets of the people by the federal treasury. And that bill is but the beginning.

It is not unlikely that, before long, this nation will actively join the other forces of freedom which are fighting to wipe from the earth the black plague of Nazism.

With such necessity for federal expenditure, it behooves all local governments, state, county, district and city, to hold their own outlay to as low a total as possible. If the nation is to pay the bill for national defense—and, possibly, for war—it can only do so by practicing strictest economy in all other fields. None is more important than the field of local government.

Instead of spending that added $200,000 in Fulton county revenue, could it not be saved and the county tax levy reduced thereby, to help the people of this county meet their federal tax payments?

An amusing pastime for the long evenings ahead will be putting a limit on the public debt. You think of a number and add 20 billion.

The Greater Need

Senator Maloney, of Connecticut, chairman of the senate committee investigating the eastern petroleum situation, has stated the "oil shortage is over."

On the same day the supply priorities and allocations board refused to grant priorities for steel plates for the construction of an oil pipe line from the east Texas oil fields to the east coast. There is greater need for the steel plates for building ships, the board ruled.

With this view few Americans will disagree. It is known that the national defense industry is not far from a steel shortage. The steel industry is today running at practical capacity and all it can turn out is needed, not only for ships, but for guns and tanks and trucks and all the other impedimenta of modern war.

Whether or not Senator Maloney is correct in his view that the gasoline shortage is over, it would be far better for motorists in the east to undergo real restrictions on gasoline use than for any steel, needed for the immediate defense and war-aid program, to be diverted to the building of pipe lines.

Perhaps, as Senator Maloney and others have contended, the railroads have sufficient idle tank car capacity to meet the emergency created by diversion of ocean tankers to carrying oil for Britain. It has been stated, though not verified, that a number of such sea-tankers are lying idle in an eastern port, landlocked because of labor troubles. It would be better, if this is true, for the government to seize these ships than to use steel so urgently needed for more important things.

If Senator Maloney is wrong, if neither railroads nor other means of transportation can solve the gasoline and oil shortage—then let's have real rationing. There has been no hardship, so far, in the rather bungling efforts of the defense petroleum administration to curb the use of gasoline. In fact, it has not brought about the desired reduction in use of the fuel. If there is a real shortage, the vast majority of automobile operators will gladly and cheerfully accept enforced rationing. If there is no shortage, then let us forget the whole thing and use our steel for ships and guns and tanks instead of for pipe lines we can do without.

A mysterious ailment which swells the head is found in interior Brazil. As there is little call for masters of ceremonies in the wilderness, the situation is critical.

Report From Russia

Marshal Semyon Timoshenko, commander of Russian troops on the central front and organizer of the counterattacks which recently gave a sharp lie to German claims of disintegration of the Red army, made some interesting observations in an interview published Sunday.

"The bombing by German aircraft made a strong impression on our men at first," he said; "now they have lost all fear of bombing." How important that observation is may be determined from the fact that neutral military observers say dive bombing alone broke the French divisions that permitted the breakthrough at Sedan in the opening days of the war in the west. Later, troops accustomed to the unearthly noise of siren-equipped dive-bombers and howling bombs stood their ground firmly and with small losses. In France, it came too late. In Russia it quite evidently has come in time—at least for a time.

Now, the Marshal observed, there is evidence that the German attacking spirit has deteriorated, and replacements of front-line troops consist of "teen age youths rather than older men. It is only natural to expect that the Nazi attack pressure has waned. The troops are far from supply bases and the routes to the front are tenuous at best. Undoubtedly now, mud and the inevitable insect camp-followers are teaming up against morale. Inevitably, too, many units have been shot, to pieces and less highly trained reserve units have been thrown into the battle lines, particularly where they are more or less static.

One of his observations is rather surprising. That is, that Russian equipment is superior to the Germans, particularly in artillery. From this, one of two things must be observed. Either the Russian equipment has improved spectacularly since the Spanish war or they did not send any of their good equipment to that conflict. For neutral observers in that war found Russian equipment far below par, with light guns looking good and working well for a short time, then heating up and going to pieces. Russian tanks in that conflict showed the quality of armorplate very poor. There seems but little question that German equipment is uniformly and surprisingly good. British experts have found it so in almost every category. While it is logical to expect it to deteriorate as the war continues, it hardly seems possible it has come this early when Nazi losses in materiel have been so low.

Obviously, much that the marshal had to say was voiced for reasons of propaganda. His first two statements quoted appear to have some independent and natural basis in fact. The third must be questioned. One big fact strikes through. The Red army still stands, and no decision can be expected before spring. The Russians are buying time with blood for the democracies. The production and the deliveries of this winter will weight the scales of the final decision.

To confound the visiting bomber, Berlin builds cardboard houses. Meanwhile, the ingenious Jap goes farther; he lives in them.

Georgia Editors Say:

THE ISSUE IS CLEAR.

(The Walker County Messenger—LaFayette.)
The Governor and his friends are trying to make it appear that the newspapers are making a mountain out of a mole hill because he fired only two out of 1,500 teachers, and that they are giving the state some mighty bad publicity.

As the Quitman Free Press points out: "Could we do some straight thinking and not get our issues so confused? It is not a question of dismissing teachers. The argument is not about that. It is about this: Shall teachers or other state employees be dismissed on charges that are not true? Shall regents be fired until the Governor gets enough on the board to do what he wants? Is an accused person whose character is involved entitled to a fair hearing? The papers and citizens are protesting that the Governor has disregarded fundamental human rights. They feel that the University System is being invaded by the kind of political domination which was so disastrous to Mississippi and Louisiana. No, it is not a matter of merely dismissing a couple of teachers. It is a matter of whether Georgia has or is going to have a Huey Long."

We believe the hurt has been so deep to every vital interest of the people of Georgia, that the Governor and his henchmen will not be able to heal it over by next year, with political salve.

The people of the state still believe in fair play, and that every citizen should have a fair trial, as guaranteed under the Constitution and Bill of Rights, and for that they will fight, for when they surrender that right, Georgia goes totalitarian, and dictatorship rules, which means only one thing—enslavement.

WASHINGTON PARADE

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.

SHOWDOWN FOR G. O. P.—WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—Unless war or peace developments intervene to give a different slant to the national political situation, the coming 1942 congressional primaries are expected to produce a showdown between isolationist and interventionist elements within the Republican party.

Already there are increasing signs of an approaching crisis in G. O. P. ranks. The party is split wide open in its attitude on the foreign policy of the Roosevelt administration. While the controversy cuts across party lines, it hits the Republicans with much greater force because of the more widespread division on the issue found in its ranks.

Nothing better illustrates the point than the conflicting positions of the past two Republican presidential nominees, Wendell L. Willkie and former Governor Alf M. Landon. Mr. Willkie has gone even beyond the President in supporting the administration's foreign policy. In his more recent public utterances he seems to have committed himself in favor of measures, not even short of war, for defeat of the Axis.

Mr. Landon, on the other hand, has been out-wheeling his own party leadership in opposition to administration moves.

WILLKIE'S PLANS To Mr. Willkie is attributed plans for entering candidates in the Republican primaries with the view of defeating every G. O. P. isolationist member of congress. Aligned against him in the move, of course, would be the 1936 Republican standard-bearer, with possibly former President Hoover contributing his support to the Landon forces.

In this way the 1942 congressional campaign would take on added interest as the curtain-raiser to the battle in 1944 over the Republican presidential nomination. Both Mr. Willkie and Governor Landon are conceded to have further presidential aspirations. While Mr. Hoover has seemingly taken himself out of the picture because of age—he is 67 now—nevertheless he may be expected to take the keenest personal interest in the situation, as he did both in 1936 and in 1940.

JEALOUSY OF LEADERS It is no secret that an intense jealousy exists among the three of them, though to a lesser degree with Mr. Willkie, perhaps, because of his position as the present titular head of the party. He has less to be jealous of as regards the Hoover and Landon positions than they have of him. Until the next Republican candidate for President is named by the 1944 national convention, he will continue to be regarded as the dominant figure in the party.

It is much too early, of course, to say what the precise issues in the 1942 campaign will be. The uncertainty of war events makes the future political picture too hazy to predict. By that time we may be actively engaged in the war. On the other hand, as discouraging as the present outlook may be, it is not beyond the realm of possibility that peace may come before then.

But it does seem that the Republican party will have to face the isolation issue in any event. If we are in war, the resulting surge of national patriotism will make the issue cut deeper against them. If we have established peace, the necessity for our playing a greater nonisolationist role in reshaping the economic problems of the world will also be felt.

OUT OF LINE WITH NATION Again, if the war continues and we are still on the outer fringe as we are today, the issue will be raised not alone by Mr. Willkie, but by the voting record of the large Republican isolation faction in congress, which obviously is sharply out of line with the majority sentiment in the country as a whole.

So it would seem that the G. O. P. will be unable to avoid the issue in one way or another. Many minority leaders are concerned lest it produce a crisis which the party may not be able to survive. Certainly that might be the case, as Mr. Willkie is supposed to feel, if the Republicans take a more open isolationist position in the next national election and then we find ourselves involved in a long war.

The extent of the Republican split on the issue is not minimized by the fact that some of the most outspoken opponents of the administration's foreign policy are Democrats. The Democratic party could shed itself of isolationist elements and still function as the majority party, so entrenched has it become in both houses of congress.

Canada

And The War.

Many people have asked, since my visit to Canada, for some reliable information on just what the Dominion is doing towards winning the war. So, herewith, let me start with some authentic information and some factual statistics. I warn you, it may take more than one column to get in the highlights, but this may be a "Continued Tomorrow" line at the bottom of the column, today.

Such a survey of Canada's war effort is, perhaps, particularly timely inasmuch as it is two years ago yesterday since Canada declared war on Germany. Canada, you know, like other members of the British Commonwealth of Nations, is today entirely independent of England, the mother country. Just because England is at war with Germany by no means meant Canada had to be involved, too. But the Canadians independently voted for war and they have been, most emphatically, in it ever since.

The War

At Sea.

In many respects the most important phase of this war is at sea. Certainly, if the sea lanes to Britain and to the far-flung theaters of combat can be kept open, Germany is doomed to final defeat. So, let's look at what Canada has done in a naval way, first.

Two years ago, when the war began, the Canadian navy consisted of 13 ships, all told. Today there are 235 in the Canadian fleet. It has sent its ships not only into the Atlantic shipping lanes, but they have been operating in the waters around the British Isles. In the Near East and many other parts of the seven seas. The Canadian ships have sunk enemy submarines, rescued passengers and crews from torpedoed vessels, captured several enemy ships and caused others to be scuttled. Three Canadian navy ships have been sunk and 336 men have been killed. In addition to all this, the Canadian ships have contributed largely to the safe conveying of 30,000,000 tons of supplies across the Atlantic.

Canada's Army. Turning to the Canadian army, it now totals, sailors, soldiers and airmen, including reserves, 490,000 men. The Canadian army was fewer than 70,000. Of the 490,000, 320,000 have voluntarily enlisted for service anywhere and more than 100,000 are already overseas. Until recently there has been no draft in Canada, but now single men aged 21 to 24 are being drafted for the home defense army—but not for overseas service. The draftees, however, may volunteer for foreign service.

Three Canadian divisions and a tank brigade are in Britain, ready for a chance to invade Europe and carry the war definitely against the Germans. Today those Canadians are an essential part of British defenses, but tomorrow they will be part of the invading army, headed for Berlin.

There have been Canadian airmen in the RAF ever since the war began. They played prominent roles in the historic evacuation of Dunkirk. More and more Canadians are joining the fighting in the air as the British Commonwealth Air Training plan accelerates. Twice as many pilots, gunners and observers as scheduled for this time, have been turned out under this plan and the rate is constantly increasing. Under that plan there are now in operation 90 training schools, 100 air fields and 124 other establishments of all kinds. Of these air crews Canada provides about 80 per cent and of these about eight per cent are Americans. Australian, New Zealand and British airmen, by thousands, also train in Canada.

Canadian

War Industry.

About 90 per cent of all Canada's industrial workers are now doing war work. Soon this number will be increased by about 40 per cent. This, of course, will involve heavy drain on peacetime occupations and more and more restrictions on the civilian population. Canadian war production is going, in greatest bulk, to Britain and every part of the British empire, to China and, soon, will be going to Russia. Today Canadian industry can turn out full equipment of every variety for an infantry division in five weeks.

You must remember that before this war, Canada produced practically no military supplies whatever. Today she is manufacturing in great quantities, convoys, minesweepers, many other types of small naval vessels, airplanes, tanks, two kinds of machinegun, one type of field gun, one type of light gun, Bofors AA guns, 3.7 AA guns, anti-aircraft guns, two kinds of trench mortars, explosives and chemicals, shells, small arms ammunition, aerial bombs, anti-tank mines, depth charges, various types of army vehicle, parachutes, gas masks, antiaircraft clothing, rafts, life preservers, anti-aircraft marine equipment and minesweeping gear.

And remember, when you read of these achievements, that Canada's total population is 12,000,000, less than nine per cent of our own country.

I knew it would have to be "Continued Tomorrow."

Word Stories

By W. Worthington Wells

English teachers cannot put too much emphasis on the use of what we call "little verbs." As an example we will take the following sentence: "The man came walking down the street." While the sentence is grammatically correct, it lacks character, color, and distinction. Any man can walk down the street. Suppose we had

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

The opinions expressed by Mr. Pegler in this column are his own and do not necessarily represent the opinion of The Atlanta Constitution.

Simple Truth NEW YORK, Sept. 10. Most of us have been so busily and angrily involved in other interests, some of them quite personal and petty, that the simple truth about this war seems to have gone into eclipse.

The simple truth is that the master of the warlike German people decreed it, began it without the slightest moral or military provocation, inflicted it on unoffending and defenseless peoples and proclaimed in one reckless utterance that there was not room in this world for Hitlerism and Americanism.

Hitler strikes so fast and so often and with such appalling brutality that we are usually unable to recall the past in the contemplation of his latest assault.

He captured Austria without a struggle and received Czechoslovakia as a bribe to spare the world this war. But he broke the promise and then made a conspiracy with Josef Stalin whereby he was allowed to smash Poland and Stalin received certain cushion states. He had a treaty of friendship with Poland and Poland remained officially at peace with Germany until Poland simply was no more. Hitler struck Poland without declaring war.

Fake Outeries Hitler has made a great outcry against Jewishness and against Bolshevism, but none of the nations which he has struck was Jewish and his strongest ally at the start and the one which gave him the signal to go ahead was Soviet Russia. Jews were only incidental in the populations of most of the assaulted countries and certainly Norway, Denmark, Holland and Belgium were not Communist and Britain was not even accused of Jewishness or Bolshevism. Britain was described with a new term. Britain was a pseudo-democracy and presently the United States was a pseudo-democracy, too.

We seem to forget the details of Hitler's war which should be kept in mind, lest we fall into the terrible error of trusting him. The Norwegians had entertained many Germans hospitably as friends for years and had saved some of them from the diseases of malnutrition when they were hungry children after the first World War. These Germans had more or less grown up in Norwegian homes and were regarded almost as sons of the Norwegian families which had succeeded them. But Hitler sent them back as soldiers disguised in civilian clothes and sent other troops across concealed in the holds of cargo ships and suddenly struck this trusting friend the most despicable blow of all. It is hard to believe now that this could have happened, but we know it did.

Even though German spies have been caught in activities which may eventually cost the lives of thousands of our people we regard their treacheries as casual misdeeds and their trials as police-court routine. Hitler would torture and execute spies caught in similar activities against him, but Americans aren't even interested, much less aroused.

No Pretense Of Honor Holland and Belgium were next, both attacked treacherously by Hitler. He preached to the German people. Two more friendly nations fell in the war on Jewishness and Bolshevism, although Jewishness was negligible in both and Communist Russia was still Hitler's ally.

These more spectacular horrors impressed us more than Hitler's later assaults on Yugoslavia and Greece and, finally, his turn against Russia because, up to then, the mind of naive men did not believe such things could happen. Thereafter instead of bearing in mind that of such a man and such a nation anything can be expected and the worst cannot even be imagined, we seem to have become dazed.

Even though German spies have been caught in activities which may eventually cost the lives of thousands of our people we regard their treacheries as casual misdeeds and their trials as police-court routine. Hitler would torture and execute spies caught in similar activities against him, but Americans aren't even interested, much less aroused.

War Sought From Start Hitler aimed for this war as no nation on earth except, perhaps, his ally, Russia, ever was armed before. War was his ambition from the beginning and Czechoslovakia was thrown to the wolves only because the British were caught unarmed and unready. Yet Hitler called the British warmongers and many of us, after persistent repetition, began to believe the word. We have even denounced as warmongers men in our own country who took alarm and belatedly began to arm the nation. His words drug some of us, nevertheless, hold themselves to be wise and practical patriots.

There is no mystery about the identity of the enemy. There is no doubt of his intention to reduce this country to the position of a second-rate partner, like France, in a Bolshevik world, there being no difference between Bolshevism and Hitlerism except in the color of the shirt and the device on the banners.

Let us forget, Hitler is the reason why the United States has had to drop every other work, suspend all progress and the reason why all those thousands of young American men have had to quit their homes, their jobs and schools to learn to fight a war.

said: "The man came strutting down the street. That sentence has distinction, in that few men strut. We could have used pace, trudge, plod, wend, tread, toddle, step, march, stalk, stride, tramp and bundle, or many others that lend a bit of color to what is otherwise a drab sentence."

The proper selection of verbs will add sparkle and life to the ordinary conversation. The ability to use the "small verbs" frequently means the difference between a successful writer and a failure. You will find them used generously in the newspapers. Watch the editorial page and the better columnists for them.

ONE WORD MORE

(While Ralph McGill is on vacation, his column is being written by guest authors. Today Eddie Rickenbacker, famous ace of the first World War and now president of Eastern Air Lines, is the guest conductor.)

WHAT IS "THE SOUTH"? An invitation to act as a guest columnist for Ralph McGill's One Word More finds me with mixed emotions. Frankly, I feel highly complimented to have this opportunity to fraternize with the followers of Ralph McGill in his favorite corner. At the same time, I am aware that none of us ever appear at such a disadvantage as when we are trying to do the other fellow's job, particularly when it is not in our sphere and our judge is the public.

The south is the name generally applied to that section of the United States which lies below the Mason-Dixon line. Those who know the south know that the Mason-Dixon line is only a convenient term designating the itinerary of an engineer's survey of historic significance. They know the south is so much more than "that section of the United States," that they rarely speak of the Mason-Dixon line.

What, then, is the south? What is it in terms of America's yesterday, America's today, America's tomorrow?

When I think of the south, it is in terms of such warm, kindly feelings that I am not certain I can convey what the south really means to me and, in a vastly larger sense, of course, to the United States. I am relying on the sincerity of my convictions, rather than statistical facts, to convey my thoughts and feelings on the subject.

BORN OF TRAGEDY From yesterday's tragedy, the south of today was born. The "blood, sweat and tears" of which Winston Churchill has so eloquently spoken, were the painful heritage of the south. From then the south emerged with a soul that has marched, again and again, through the baptism of fire.

Just recently someone remarked: "The British are taking a terrific pounding. They are enduring more than we Americans, for example, could stand."

Strange words for any citizen of America! I say: "But what of the south?" If ever it was done, the people of the south have demonstrated the indomitable courage of which American heroes are made. Go south and you will meet the sons and daughters of these people."

The south is the hope of America. Do not mistake that. A people cannot live as valiantly as have the people of the south for the past 80 years and not know what to do with today and tomorrow.

SOUTH HAS EVERYTHING The south has everything—material and spiritual—necessary to help save America in these days fraught with danger. Great natural resources; growing diversification of industry; a transportation system which is keeping pace with this growth; a thorough-going American quality in its abundant man power providing a spontaneity and a drive which has always been the wonder of the world.

There are no heterogeneous and unassimilated nationalities in the south's bloodstream to thwart her unity of purpose. Her robust Americanism and singleness of objective gives America the strength needed today.

Beyond her vast commercial effort, the south today is continuing her traditional role as America's defense incubator. Obviously, defense preparations are not confined to the south. But the south has the traditions that go with the making of soldiers. The climate is right and the topography is right. The south has always possessed more military schools per capita than any other American area. Today soldier training is a major "industry" in the south. Military encampments have sprung up as mushrooms.

THE HOMES OF THE SOUTH Down through the pages of magnificent cultures. He has scaled the heights and he has fallen into the abysses. And always his failures have sprung from disintegration of the home.

Cripple or destroy the influence of the home, and you have destroyed an individual, a family, a nation or a race. That is fundamental.

The home is still the most important institution in the south. Vastly more important than, even, the public school system, the highways and bridges, agriculture and industry.

And therein lies the fundamental strength of the south. The south is still wise enough and discerning enough to foster and nurture the home.

The social life of the southern people is centered in their homes. It spells "good living."

These things and more. Her nature is generous; her motives hospitable; her tenor and moods gay, uplifting and comforting. The south is a patrician hostess perfumed by night-blooming jasmine, magnolia blossoms and dogwood.

The south is a place anyone should be proud to call "home."

The Best Tool Is the One That Does the Most Work At Least Cost

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

Engineers and experts must figure out the details, but neither experience nor special training is needed to design the most effective kind of weapon.

What is the most effective weapon? The whole history of warfare gives the answer on every page.

Ask some high school boy, and he will answer: "The main idea is to hurt the enemy as much as possible while yourself escaping hurt as much as possible. That used to mean a bow and arrow or spear or sword to use on the enemy and a bull-hide shield to protect yourself. Finally it meant long range guns and concrete forts—or floating forts called battleships."

"But," you say, "what is the best weapon for mobile forces on land?"

"Well," he says, "you figure it out by degrees, and each logical step leads straight to the answer. First you need a vehicle to move fast over any kind of ground in order to get there first or catch up with your opponent. That means a powerful tractor on caterpillar treads."

"Those things can be hurt," you say.

"Not easily," he answers, "if they are made right. What you are building is a land battleship—but not a tank. You surround it with armor plate so heavy that no small cannon can dent it. The crew feels safe."

"But what about your weapon?"

"That comes next," says he. "Your land battleship is chiefly a gun carrier. You mount a big gun—big enough to knock out any tank or concrete machinegun nest. And you have an antiaircraft gun and a couple of heavy machineguns."

"What about the crew?"

"The crew," he says, "can do everything. There are men to operate the guns, and others who function like a landing party. They jump off to do little jobs of mopping up. And they are armed with sub-machineguns, automatic pistols and hand grenades. They carry more sudden death and destruction than an old-fashioned regiment."

A kid might answer that way. If he did, he wouldn't seem a foolish amateur, for he would be describing Germany's best and most dreadful weapon—a product of experience.

We might profit by that experience, too, but we haven't yet. We have no such weapon built or building, so far as the public knows.

This is an interview with Billy Beard, and myself. Maybe I'll do more talking than Billy will—because I control the typewriter. And the space.

Billy Beard is an old-timer—an Atlantan. He lives here. In the grand old blackface minstrel days Billy was known as the "Party from the South." He was pretty good. He ganked with Lew Dockstader and Al G. Fields and McIntyre and Heath and all those notables who have gone where the woodbine twined. I can't remember that Billy ever did a solo show dance like the famous Primrose and certainly he never hit a couple of notes—falsetto—above "High-C," as did a few of those minstrel show soloists. But that wasn't Billy's line. He was an end man.

Did modern youngsters ever see an honest-to-goodness, old-fashioned minstrel show? Probably not.

They used to pack 'em in every season at the old Atlanta theater

He and Billy Beard Interview Each Other About Minstrelsy

—and before that at DeGives' Grand and before that the Bijou. People who scorned the drama and musical comedy wanted tickets to the minstrels—Al G. Fields, Dockstader, Honey-Boy Evans—all of them. One of my greatest bothers was trying to buy—for cash, not passes—two dozen seats down in front for folk like Lucien York, then manager of Rich's, Guyton Robson and other devotees of blackface.

Minstrels never got to Broadway. They didn't like 'em up there. True, Eddie Cantor and Al Jolson made hits in burnt cork. I don't know why. But minstrelsy was a woe in the south.

I don't know the why about that, either. The "nigger minstrel" wasn't flesh, fowl or fish. He was about as real a Negro as those in Octavius Roy Cohen's stories of the smart colored set in Bummin'ham—which I cannot credit.

Strange Creature

The minstrel show Negro was covered with burnt cork. His eyes were surrounded by white paint. His crimson lips were an inch thick. And he talked in a dialect never heard on land or sea.

But he was funny. You couldn't get away from that. He was funny. When he busted up the interlocutor's dignity with a quick comeback—just like that. You wondered how he could think up the answers that fast.

Billy Beard was one of the nefarious gang. And is proud of it. "Billy," I asked, when he was in my joint a few days ago, "what was a gag funder? It delivered from under burnt cork than if it had been put over straight?"

"Do you know," he responded, "I thought over that a long time. And never got the answer. So I've got away from blackface. It's a lot of trouble to put on and lot more to take off, and it certainly does boost your laundry bill." I don't know what ever became of the old blackface boys. The former regulars of vaudeville are haunting the agents and picking up odd engagements—four-a-day stands in connection with movies. Some of them hit it at Hollywood. Some squeezed into radio.

But Billy Beard—the "Party from the South"—found—or made—himself a job. A career. He looks well-fed—perhaps a little too well-fed—and he never has tried to borrow a quarter off me. Indeed, I'm thinking of touching him the next time he comes 'round—if this doesn't forewarn him.

Billy says he started on his stage career by giving shows in the barn and charging pins for admission. He says he caused a shortage of pins throughout his home county—but you know how actors brag.

Then, by easy stages—you can turn on the nux vomica of the organ and play and music if you like—he busted into blackface minstrelsy. Maybe he started out in alleys and pawned his shoes and was just about to dive into the river and end it all when a famous producer discovered him.

I say, "maybe," because Billy never said that. But it would have been a good story, wouldn't it? Even if a little threadbare.

Anyway, Billy didn't desert the minstrels. The minstrels deserted him.

Made Him a Job

So he checked up on himself. And he discovered he was pretty good. At least, he thought so. Hell, if you don't think you're pretty good, how can you sell the other guy?

Billy Beard worked out an idea like this:

"This country is full of conventions. There's a convention somewhere in this vast nation every week—indeed, a couple of dozen. Conventions are full of addresses and technical discussions and statistics. But all of them give banquets, when people are supposed to cut loose and have a good time. If I can grab off a date from the chairman of the entertainment committee I try to wake 'em up."

So, Mr. Beard has been introduced to the assemblage as the vice president of the American Association for the Promotion of Pizolitz, the Pooch-bah of the National Assemblage of Second-Hand Shoe Dealers and the secretary of the Supreme Order of Wow-Wows, an organization of experts devoted to grinding spines down to fit antique chairs. At least that's what Billy told me, and I'd never question his word.

He has also been principal speaker—at the banquets of other better known orders.

His job is to throw a couple of monkey wrenches into the machinery.

Unknown to the members and guests—except the fellow who writes the check—Mr. Beard is accustomed to arise and in a few ill-chosen words destroy all the tenets, customs, traditions and creeds of the assemblage. If it happens to be a convention of morticians—and they're a jolly set—he tells gay stories about cadavers and the humorous angle of embalming.

Billy has been exposed more than once—in fact, he is almost always exposed. Once because, pretending to be Dr. Einstein, he fell down on trying to extract the cube root of 12, promulgated by a sour-faced old dotard who insisted on hording in.

But Billy Beard steers clear of blackface. And he doesn't go into a dance. Thing that worries him when trying to escape after an impersonation, is attempting to square things with some serious-minded chap who thinks he has ridiculed the profession.

Good Morning

By LOUIE D. NEWTON.

NEW BOOKS.
An hour or two each day with the constant stream of new books would afford material for this column every day of the week. Let today's column, at least, be devoted to three of the latest books to come to my study table.

"Have You a Religion?" is the arresting title of a book just from the press of Farrar and Rinehart, by Henry James Forman, Harvard man and sometime member of the staff of the New York Sun, Literary Digest and Colliers. Widely known for his several books in both the fiction and non-fiction fields, Mr. Forman comes now with a book on the ambitious theme of "The Supreme Hygiene of Life." "This is not a religious book," he declares, in his foreword.

Miss disappointment in the book centers in the fact and significance of his use of one letter in his title, namely, "A." If he had written about religion, instead of trying to suggest that one may go into a museum and select one of the many religions, it would have suited me much better. If he had faced the inevitable truth of God, instead of trying to balance down into a hodge-podge the notions of the many founders of the many religions, he would have got somewhere. The book is very interesting. Indeed, it is profitable reading, but it misses the mark of the ultimate in religion as expressed by Jesus, when He said: "And this is life eternal that they might know Thee, the only true God, and Jesus Christ

Whom thou hast sent." (John 17:3.)

And next, "Son of the Smoky Sea," by Nutchuk (with Alden Hatch), published by Julian Messner, Inc., is an autobiographical story of a half-Norwegian, half-Eskimo orphan boy who was brought up in the Methodist mission at Unalak, in the Aleutian Islands. It is a fascinating book, beautifully illustrated, and written in a charm of style rarely found. Buy this book for your boy, and get through with it just as quickly as you can, because he will read every word of it. It will be ready October 1.

My third book for today is "Ideas and Ideals of the British Empire," by Ernest Barker, the Cambridge University Press. This volume examines critically the contribution made by the Empire to the political progress of mankind. Sounds heavy, doesn't it? And it is, but you will be richly rewarded in reading this book.

And now in this last paragraph I wish to mention two other books. Macmillan has just published a new edition of Walker's "Comprehensive Concordance to the Holy Scriptures," which I heartily recommend. And Macmillan has just published the 35th edition of Link's "The Return to Religion" in a popular edition, priced at $1. I wish every layman in the country would read this book. I judge all the preachers have already read it.

DIFFERENT OPINIONS

DON'T JUSTIFY FALSHIP

Editor, Constitution: I want to endorse Charles H. Emmons' reply to Dr. Louie Newton's recent pop-off against the President and his support of Senator Byrd in his unjustifiable criticism of our great leader.

As a regular reader of Dr. Newton's column, it is very clear that he is at odds with the President because of his own anti-Catholic views as well as his ideas on prohibition and the liberal views of the President on economic matters.

But this difference of opinion ought not to lead anyone to falsify facts, especially on such an important matter as the defense program and national unity.

CASE FOR RAIL WORKER

TOLD BY UNION LEADER

Editor, Constitution: In order to prejudice the mind of the public against the so much deserved and so badly needed proposed increases of the employees of the railroads the roads are broadcasting fantastically exaggerated estimates of the cost of the proposed increases; thus they hope to divert attention from the real question.

The question is this: "Who will share the benefits of the constantly increasing efficiency of the railroads and their employees, and the rapidly rising profits of the carriers?"

Light on this question is available from official government reports and other authoritative sources which reveal that for years the efficiency of railroad employees has been increasing until today the average rail employee is producing 143 units for each 100 he produced five years ago, using the best yardstick available for this purpose—the "freight ton mile."

In other words, his efficiency has increased 43 per cent. The rail propaganda has not told you and the public this. This explains why the railroads are carrying now more freight with approximately 1,000,000 employees than they did in 1920 with approximately 2,000,000 employees, and the total pay roll has been reduced proportionately. Obviously, these workers are losing jobs through their increasing efficiency. Therefore the only way they can share the benefits of that increasing efficiency is in increased wage rates—forgetting for the minute the increasing cost of living as shown by governmental statistics, as well as the failure of our pay checks to go as far now as then.

Rail profits are best measured by the amount of money "available for fixed charges." That is, money left to pay interest on bonds and dividends on stock.

Brunswick and Glynn

May Merge Departments

BRUNSWICK, Ga., Sept. 10.—(AP)—Pursuing studies aimed at eventual consolidation of city and county services, a county committee has been appointed to confer with a similar city group on merging the two police departments.

Chairman R. A. Gould and H. G. Friedman, engineer-director for Glynn county, were designated to meet with Mayor J. Hunter Hopkins and Commissioner J. C. Kaufman, of the city, specifically on the police merger.

While the police changes are first on the program, the Brunswick News recalled that the subject had received the attention of previous grand juries. When the police merger was taken up, the News added, it was indicated that a study would be made of other departments later.

Teacher Contracts Next Year Will Be in Writing

From now on, Georgia will require its teachers to sign written contracts in order to forestall wholesale resignations such as have depleted teaching lists this year.

J. I. Allman, assistant state superintendent of schools, said yesterday that in the past most teachers had been hired on oral contracts and these were not considered binding.

Allman said he hoped the state would enforce future written contracts so that schools would not have to worry about a shortage of teachers when they prepared to open in the fall.

Doctor Here Eases Birth With Quinine

Simple Treatment Reduces Pain One-Third to One-Half.

By FRANK DRAKE.

A simple and inexpensive method of successfully reducing the time and pain of labor in child-birth from a third to one-half in normal pregnancies has been developed by an Atlanta doctor.

He is Dr. Linton Smith, graduate of Emory University and an obstetrician and surgeon here for 38 years.

(His name is being used because Dr. Smith has published several medical papers on this subject and because his experiments and conclusions about it have been widely quoted in the medical journals of England and Holland and followed by doctors in India and Egypt.)

The simple method—administration of quinine dihydrochloride by the mouth—is not now widely used in this country and only a few doctors in Atlanta have followed Dr. Smith's lead, but the Cornell University medical center this year began a large-scale study of it which will involve a total of 4,000 cases.

Results in more than 400 cases here showed the time of labor for women bearing their first child was reduced from approximately 18 hours to 12 when given prenatal doses of quinine, and the labor of women bearing their second child was cut from 12 hours to 6 hours on the average.

Administration of quinine decreased the actual pains of labor tremendously, and in addition made the mothers stronger and healthier.

There has never been a bad reaction on the infant born of a "quinized" mother treated by Dr. Smith or his associates here. Reports that some babies were deafened when their mothers were treated with quinine in pregnancy have been made but experiments by Dr. Smith and others show that this occurs only when overdoses of the drug are given in quick succession.

On one patient treated with the quinine salt "couldn't take it" and the treatment was discontinued after the first dose. There were no ill effects in this case either.

In his medical papers, Dr. Smith says he gives one and one-half grains of quinine dihydrochloride in gelatin capsules three times daily before meals beginning 21 days before the day the baby is expected.

It is important, he points out, that the dose should not be larger nor smaller and is the same size for all normal women.

Discovered by Englishman. He has noted that the number of labor pain spasms in an average, normal pregnancy is 216, about 12 an hour. By the use of quinine salt, the number of spasms is cut to 144 on the average—72 fewer pains for the mother to bear.

First knowledge that quinine cut down the duration of labor came a dozen years ago from a Dr. Hewitson, an English doctor practicing in South Africa, where malaria fever is common.

This doctor treated all pregnancies with quinine from the beginning to ward off malaria and it was only to combat the fever that it was used. However, he noted after a time his patients treated with this drug for the prevention of malaria had their babies less comparative ease and much less pain than those who were not given quinine. He reported this in an English medical journal and Dr. Smith, in Atlanta, read it and began the same type treatment for his patients.

Method Is Praised. Quinine has been used in certain types of pregnancies by doctors over a long period of time but Dr. Smith was a pioneer in America in its use in normal pregnancies.

The drug, gives "tone" and strength to the muscles which control birth and causes greater power of relaxation after each paroxysm of pain that helps move the baby from the womb into the birth canal, he notes.

His results have been so consistently good that an Englishman, Dr. D. A. Mitchell, and a German, Dr. H. P. A. Smith, both quote Dr. Smith in their medical papers as the American authority on this comparatively recent method of easing child birth labor.

The Atlanta first published a report on quinine for normal pregnancies in 1936 and subsequently has written several others which were printed in the Fulton County Medical Society bulletin and in the Journal of the Georgia Medical Association.

Dr. Smith declared yesterday he is ending his work in obstetrics and is taking no new cases. He said he will devote his time to surgery in the future and will "take it a bit easier."

False Radio Reports Helped at Spitzbergen LONDON, Sept. 10.—(P)—The Canadian-Norwegian-British expedition to Spitzbergen kept up constant wireless communication with German forces in Norway, sending false weather reports and information about the Germans never discovered the deception until the raid was over, Canadians said today.

False messages to Tromsø, Norway, told of misty, cloudy weather and zero ceiling to keep Nazi planes from making their regular flights to the islands, the Canadians said.

Several days after the radio stations were destroyed, frantic messages from the Nazis at Tromsø were picked up by wireless men on one of the expedition's returning warships. The Nazis were trying to find out what had silenced Spitzbergen.

Road Foreman Is Electrocuted Near Marietta

Sam Jones Killed Instantly as Crane Contacts Wire.

Special to THE CONSTITUTION. MARIETTA, Ga., Sept. 10.—Sam Jones, foreman of the M. J. Carroll Construction Company, was electrocuted shortly before noon today when the boom of a steel loading crane contacted a high voltage wire at the intersection of Roswell street and the new Marietta-Atlanta highway, where road construction was under way.

Mr. Jones, according to reports, was guiding a concrete block into place, which was being lifted by the crane. He had his hands on the steel cable as the crane released the block and the boom lifted high enough to contact the wire overhead.

After unsuccessful efforts were made to free Jones from contact with the cable, the crane boom was lowered, breaking the wire. Jones was instantly killed by the voltage.

Mr. Jones had been with the Carroll Construction Company for about eight years. He was about 40 years old and his home was in Washington, Ga.

The body was removed to Mayes, Ward & Company Funeral Home.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Hortense Burdette Jones; two children, Frank, 5, and Samille, 2; his mother, Mrs. Bennie Jones; two sisters, Mrs. Troupe Harris and Mrs. Mack Cosby, and one brother, Willis H. Jones, all of Washington.

Rites will be held at the cemetery in Washington, tomorrow, Dr. Wayman Reese, Baptist minister, officiating.

Trial of Atlantan Set at Summerville Week of September 23.

SUMMERVILLE, Ga., Sept. 10.—(P)—A Chattahoochee county grand jury today indicted Alex Reeves, Atlanta machine shop operator, for murder in the pistol slaying of Al Messier, former Miami and Boston hotel man.

Held without bond in Chattahoochee county jail, Reeves probably will be tried during the court term opening September 23.

The shooting occurred at a tavern on Lookout mountain shortly after midnight September 2. Reeves told authorities he shot Messier nine times after finding Messier and Mrs. Reeves "in an embarrassing situation" outside the tavern.

report has been handed to the President.

Non-operating unions, with a membership of 900,000, had voted to strike at 6 p. m. tomorrow for an hourly wage rate 30 to 34 cents higher than the carriers now pay. The 350,000 members of the operating brotherhoods had decided to strike next Monday for a 30 per cent pay increase.

Two of Mr. Roosevelt's most trusted advisers boarded the Presidential special at New York to make the rest of the run to Washington. They were Harry L. Hopkins, lease-lend supervisor, and Judge Samuel I. Rosenman, of the New York state supreme court.

The President, it was explained, wanted Hopkins to bring him up to date on the program of supply of war materials and weapons to Britain, China and Russia and on the latest turn in foreign affairs.

William D. Hassett, of the Presidential secretariat, said Rosenman had a supplementary report for Mr. Roosevelt on a study he has been making of the possible necessity of further revision of the defense organization.

Hassett was unable to say whether further shifts in the high command of the defense program might be expected, suggesting that reorganization was a continuous process.

Mrs. Roosevelt accompanied her husband back to Washington from their family home beside the Hudson. Both came to the train wearing the same garments of mourning in which they appeared at the funeral.

doctor said he had been in bad health for several years. He was on an operating table in the doctor's office when the doctor left the room for a minute or two.

When the doctor returned, Mr. Williamson was gone. The Venetian blind had been hastily tied up and City Detectives W. M. Holland and D. L. Taylor and Officers W. W. Ford and E. S. Faucett found his fingerprints on the window sill.

K. W. Davis, of 30 Auburn avenue, told the officers he was in an adjacent office building and saw Mr. Williamson swing out over the window sill and crash down into the street below.

An Awtry & Lowndes ambulance rushed him to Grady hospital, where he was pronounced dead on arrival. The body was transferred to H. M. Patterson & Son, who will announce funeral arrangements.

No Inquest To Be Held. Police said they did not think an inquest would be necessary since there was an eyewitness to the death jump. Mrs. Williamson, almost hysterical when the news was told her in the doctor's office, requested that there be no inquest.

Besides his wife, Mr. Williamson is survived by two sisters, Mrs. S. T. Ross, of Winder, and Mrs. J. R. Bullock, of Atlanta; a brother, Emory Williamson, of Augusta; a son-in-law, Hugh W. Dobbs; two granddaughters, Miss Marian Williamson, of Atlanta, and Mrs. Peter Kittles, of Hinesville, and a niece, Mrs. Harry Dunwoody, of Atlanta.

CAN'T KEEP GRANDMA IN HER CHAIR She's as lively as a youngster—Now her backache is better.

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys. The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

When a disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up at night, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headache and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passage with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Dykes, announced today that the opening date is September 22, as planned, and there would be no more delays. The time was extended from September 8 to September 22, on account of several cases of polio among Negroes, all of whom were in remote sections of the county.

By getting started this month, Superintendent Dykes expects to finish the fall and spring terms without teaching on Saturdays and holidays, but further delay would make this necessary in order to get in the state-required number of days before next June 1.

Naylor Elected Head of Chain Drug Stores

Atlantan Predicts Boom in Trade During Christmas Holidays.

Christmas holiday trade in drug stores is going to boom 30 to 35 per cent over last year, H. C. Naylor, of Atlanta, head of Lane Drug Stores, Inc., predicted in New York as he was elected president of the Associated Chain Drug Stores at the semi-annual convention in the Hotel Waldorf-Astoria, it was reported here yesterday.

Furthermore, if goods were available in proportion to increasing purchasing power, the holiday sales would be even greater—higher than 40 per cent above last Christmas, Naylor asserted.

Effect of Priority. However, priorities and switchovers to defense production will reduce materially the number of sundry merchandise articles which will line the drug store shelves and showcases this Christmas, the Atlantan asserted.

Topping the list of articles most likely to enjoy a banner season will be cosmetics and candies, and merchants with stockings in their stocks will do a very active business. Discussing Christmas promotions as the theme of the convention, Naylor said his chain of stores is now limiting the sale of hosiery to three pairs to a customer.

Mechanical Item Scarcity.

He noted that many mechanical and small electrical items will be scarce for the Christmas rush, because, for instance, one clock company already has withdrawn its line and is now making timing instruments for the munitions of war.

Metal priorities are taking so much from the drug store trade that even whisk brooms of a certain type, bound with wire, are becoming harder to get, because the wire is needed for defense.

Naylor predicted a vogue for brighter colors in hosiery and haberdashery to disguise changes made necessary by national defense.

"Retail activity in towns adjacent to Army posts has been tremendous," the Atlantan merchant remarked. "It is Christmas trade almost every night in many of these."

His views were supported by other merchants at the meeting.

The Secret of the Marshbanks

Provisions of Fred Marshbanks' Will Establishes Cherry's True Identity

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

Synopsis of preceding chapters:

Charlotte (Cherry) Rawlings, an orphan at Saint Dorothy's convent school since she was seven, knows almost nothing of her early history. She has no family and she questions whether she has the right to her father's name, Judge Judson Marshbanks and Emma Haskell are her guardians and when she is 20, Emma gets her secretarial job with wealthy Mrs. Porteous Porter in San Francisco for whom Emma is housekeeper. At the Marshbanks' mansion she meets the members of the judge's household, his dictatorial old mother, Amy, debutante daughter of his dead brother Fred, and Fran, her second wife, Kelly Coste, a young artist sends Cherry a box of candy and she is jealous when he brings Fran to a party at Mrs. Porteous' home. Emma tells Cherry that her unmarried sister, Charlotte, was Cherry's mother and she learns from the judge that Amy's father, Judge Marshbanks, died when she was a child. Fran will visit his studio and Cherry can see he is very much in love with Mrs. Porter. Mrs. Porter dies, leaving Cherry $1,500, and she goes to Stanford University, living with the Porters at Palo Alto. Fran tells Cherry she has decided to do the same thing and see Kelly no more. Kelly asks her to be friendly with her, saying he likes Cherry. Soon afterward he asks Cherry to marry him, although Fran will always be the attainable woman. Her answer is no, she wants no man in the background. Cherry and Rebecca Fringle work in a vacation camp, then take a motor trip to Canada and on the way back Cherry goes to see Emma.

INSTALLMENT XXXIV.

"I should think it would simplify matters; I should think it would let Kelly out of it, at least," Gregg said.

"I should think anything any more," his grandmother stated wearily. "I guess I've lived long enough. So you got him away from Fran, did you?"

"That was all over. They hadn't seen each other for months. But Fran suddenly got all worked up about it. She had letters from him that the police found."

"Those letters!" the older woman said scornfully.

"Letters that are months old. He told me that this morning. But found them, and now—with her saying that she quarreled with the judge, and suddenly grabbed the revolver and fired it—I suppose they'll think they're important!" Cherry supplied.

At Cherry was about to leave old Mrs. Marshbanks, Amy and Count Gogo burst in. Amy was laughing with excitement. Her husband of a day beamed darkly in her wake.

"Gran, darling," Amy said with her kiss, "we were going through from our way to Del Monte and we got homesick, and so we're putting off our honeymoon, and we came home to see you! You kiss her, too, Gogo!"

Her grandmother was visibly startled, but she rallied enough to keep the surface unbroken, returned Amy's kiss, accepted Gogo's salute of her hand. Amy explained that they had spent the night at a dude ranch near Reno, "where Gogo stayed at the time he was getting his last divorce," she added cheerfully.

Cherry informed the newcomers that Fran had been asked to go to police headquarters "to explain something," and that Fran had "sort of broken down" earlier in the day, and they were questioning her.

"But why? She doesn't know anything about it!" Amy exclaimed, almost angrily.

"You cannot possibly know zat, dear," said the count.

These few minutes of explanation and welcome over, Amy glanced at her husband, who seemed a trifle hesitant. The old lady, quite aware that something was in the wind, looked from one to the other quickly.

"The thing is, Gran," Amy burst out, "that yesterday when I grabbed some things to go and meet Gogo there was some mail on the hall table, two or three letters for me, and I took them along. We didn't look at them until this morning and then I—we Gogo felt—we both felt, that it might be important, and that we ought to talk to someone about it."

"If it is for Aimee's comfort, then it is important to me," Gogo said impressively.

"You say it's business, Amy," old Mrs. Marshbanks said, with a level look at Gogo. "What sort of business?"

"It's from some lawyer, Gran," Amy explained. "Mr. George Comstock, he says that owing to the sudden death of his father, Judge Thomas Comstock, affairs in the office—I'll read it," Amy interrupted herself.

"Affairs in the office have been in some inevitable confusion, owing to the recent sudden death of my father," she read aloud. "My partner, Mr. Edward Brace, and I have been attempting to the best of our ability to straighten out his affairs. We now discover that a document deliverable to you on the occasion of your 21 birthday, November 17, of this year, has been overlooked, and is now 11 days overdue. The envelope, sealed, was deposited here at the request of your father, the late Frederick Archibald Marshbanks, at the time of his death."

And at least five more pennants for a town where most everybody gets in on a pass and roots for the visiting team.

Baering Down on the News

By Arthur "Bugs" Boer.

I have to say something about Clark Griffith and his 360 shortstop, Travis, because Clark had been waiting for that man since 1900.

Now Clark has him and the Army wants him. I traveled with the Washingtons back around 1910 and I firmly believe that Griffith was the original odditorium.

A 360 shortstop would have won 100 more games for Walter Johnson. And at least five more pennants for a town where most everybody gets in on a pass and roots for the visiting team.

The Yanks have their pennant sewed up like a hole in a silk stocking. That struggle between the Dodgers and the Cards is tighter than a wet window sash.

Roosevelt Talk Goes on Radio Tonight at 9

All Four Atlanta Stations To Carry Speech; World To Listen.

President Franklin D. Roosevelt will speak to the world tonight via radio. His message will be carried in Atlanta over the Columbia, NBC and Mutual networks through WGST, WSB, WAGA and WATL at 9 o'clock, Atlanta time. The President's words will be translated and relayed to all countries within reach of short wave.

The President was forced to cancel his talk, which was scheduled for Monday night, due to the death of his mother, Mrs. Sara Delano Roosevelt.

Major Bowes Opens 6th Season on Air

One week after his return to the air, Major Edward Bowes launches his "Original Amateur Hour" on its sixth year over the Columbia Broadcasting System showpiece tonight at 8 o'clock over WGST. Major Bowes salutes Nashville, Tenn., the 26th city to be thus honored in the current series and 328th since the program began in March, 1935.

Except for a single performance since the "Original Amateur Hour's" inception—a pause occasioned by the Republican national convention in 1940—the program had been uninterrupted until last June 19, when, under his physician's orders, Major Bowes entered Doctor's hospital for an operation. The operation was totally successful.

The thousands of messages and tokens of good will which poured into the hospital were sufficient proof that the program and its purpose had lost none of its appeal over the years.

The policy of the program remains unchanged, continuing to present people deserving of an opportunity for one reason or another could not get the chance.

Bert Parks To Sing On 'Cugat Revue'

Bert Parks, former Atlanta boy who has been a big time radio star for about 10 years, will do a popular vocal number on the "Cugat Rumba Revue" over the NBC-Red network and WAGA tonight at 6:30. The program is a half hour and features both Latin and American songs. Parks' song will be "I Don't Want To Set the World on Fire."

Carmen Castillo will be heard singing "Time Was." She will do the vocals in Spanish. A new number, "Mi Suena Azul," written by a member of the Cugat band, will be played for the first time on the broadcast tonight.

Joint Conference Committee Fails To Agree on Tax Bill

Senate Leaders Are Hopeful Group Will Settle Major Controversies at Today's Session; Lowered Exemptions Yet To Be Discussed.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—(P)—A joint conference committee worked today to adjust senate-house differences in the record-breaking revenue bill, but broke up without agreeing on any of the major controversies.

The $3,583,900,000 measure approved by the senate will raise an estimated $367,500,000 more than the bill passed by the house. It includes a provision, estimated to yield $305,000,000 annually, lowering personal income tax exemptions from $2,000 to $1,500 for married persons and from $800 to $750 for single individuals.

At the conclusion of today's conference, senate members said they were hopeful that a complete agreement could be reached tomorrow despite the slow progress of the first meeting. They said that while the joint group had agreed on a number of minor items there had been no discussion of the lowered exemptions or of the senate changes in house corporation taxes.

The senate knocked out a special 10 per cent levy the house had imposed on those corporations not earning sufficient profits to come under the schedule of excess profits taxes. The levy was estimated to yield $67,700,000 a year. The chamber then voted to increase corporation surtaxes from 5 to 6 per cent on net income up to $25,000 and from 6 to 7 per cent on income over that figure. The increase was estimated by the finance committee to raise an additional $120,500,000 a year.

During the day, Acting Speaker Woodrum, Democrat, Virginia, made public a telegram from Speaker Rayburn, who is in Texas, saying that all members of the house should return to Washington early next week.

You'll certainly smile again if you use Constitution Want Ads.

Army To Start Alaska Line of Air Freighters

2,000-Mile Route To Speed Supplies to Strategic Outpost.

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Sept. 10.—(P)—Big aerial freighters soon will be racing vital defense supplies to America's outposts in Alaska, on a regular schedule over a 2,000-mile route.

That was the Army's answer today to the necessity of whipping up defense preparations at the isolated far north bases. Air Corps pilots of the 50th Transport Wing will fly the freight, using twin-engine transport planes. The route will be between the Sacramento air depot and Ladd Field, Fairbanks, Alaska. Service will start just as soon as the equipment arrives.

The new supply line will expedite shipment of Air Corps supplies to Alaska at a time when international developments have emphasized the strategic importance of America's northern outpost.

Instead of requiring long weeks to get materials and equipment to Alaskan destinations by water routes, Ladd Field now will be only three days away—even closer in event of emergency.

Because of the shortness of northern days, the projected flights will be made in three stages: the first stop at McChord Field, Wash., another "somewhere along the route," and finally Ladd Field itself. At the start at least, plans call for trips not more frequently than weekly.

The flights will be made from the Sacramento air depot, which is the supply base for a vast area extending from Mexico to Alaska, and from Hawaii and the Philippines on the west, to a line from Tucson through Albuquerque, Salt Lake City, Boise and Spokane on the east.

Behind the preparations stand years of Army experiments with air freighting and a record of millions of ton-miles, without serious mishap to either crew or cargo.

The present C-39, a low-winged Douglas transport, lifts 22,000 pounds, including fuel, crew and 3,200 pounds of payload.

The Atlanta Democratic executive committee delayed action on furnishing the city of Atlanta its required list of registered voters for the year 1942 at a called meeting last night pending attitude of Fulton county registrar in furnishing such a list.

Although the county registrar has supplied such a list in the past, it was done merely as a favor to the city and not because it was required by law, it was pointed out.

The committee voted to meet every three months in the future, with the next meeting scheduled for December 12.

Members voted unanimously to send a letter of condolence to President Roosevelt in the recent death of his mother, and ordered the immediate purchasing of two defense bonds in the name of the organization. Chairman Arthur Johnson presided.

Seafarer Captain Urges Armament

CAIRO, Sept. 10.—(INS)—Captain John Holliday, whose Steel Seafarer was sunk in the Red sea by aerial torpedo, called today for arming of the American lease-lend merchant fleet so that American crews taking arms to British forces can "shoot back" at Axis attackers.

Captain Holliday, a native of Baltimore, arrived in port with his 35 officers and men after being rescued by a British warship and a Danish merchantman. He spent three hours at the American legation drafting a detailed report on the sinking of the Steel Seafarer.

"If we are going to run into these fellows," he told an International News Service correspondent later, "we should have guns. We ought to be able to shoot back."

BIRTHDAY OBSERVED.

LAGRANGE, Ga., Sept. 10.—The 85th birthday anniversary of W. N. Swanson was celebrated with a family reunion at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Guy Swanson near Chipley last Sunday when dinner was served on tables on the lawn to 32 members of the family.

Quartermaster Depot Handles Varied Freight

August Traffic Would Have Made Train of Cars 8 Miles Long.

Freight cars loaded with everything from paper clips to automobiles—enough of them to make up a train eight miles long if hooked behind one engine—passed through the Atlanta Quartermaster Depot during August.

More than 1,000,000 pounds of freight a day moved in and out of the depot here, Colonel Thomas L. Holland, commanding officer, announced.

The traffic grows heavier each month, Colonel Holland pointed out. Freight received and shipped in August was up 8 per cent greater than the preceding July, and July was up 15 per cent over June.

All the freight received or shipped in the past 11 months amounts to more than 345,000,000 pounds, the equivalent of 192 60-car trains or one train 88 miles long.

Atlanta Society Hurries To Reserve Dates for Brilliant Winter Parties

Football Breakfasts, Balls And Dances Vie for Favor

By SALLY FORTH.

THE WINTER SOCIAL calendar gives promise of a gay season by day and by night. Parties galore are scheduled to add luster to the months of October, November, and December, these to include elaborate debut balls, colorful receptions and exciting football breakfasts.

The Piedmont Driving Club, the recognized rendezvous for Atlanta society for many generations, continues to be booked for a number of autumn's largest parties.

Clare Hewlett, pretty daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Hewlett, will make her debut at a brilliant supper-dance at which her parents will entertain on December 26 at the Piedmont Driving Club.

Julia Fleet, who has long ranked as a sub-deb favorite here, will return from her new home on the Pacific coast for her formal presentation to society, her coming-out party to be a supper-dance on Christmas Eve. Hosts at the affair will be her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Fleet.

Carolyn Yundt, popular daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Yundt, will make her formal bow on November 7 at a brilliant ball to be held at the Driving Club.

Brunet and slender Virginia Richardson makes her bow at a reception given on November 12 at her home on Montclair drive. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Leaver Richardson, will be hosts at the important social event, and Mrs. Alonzo Richardson, beloved grandmother of the attractive debutante, will be included in the receiving line. Virginia inherits much of her charm and beauty from her mother, whose name she bears, for Mrs. Richardson is the former Virginia McLane, of Waco, Texas. She finished her education at Sophie Newcomb College in New Orleans, and since that time has been studying art at the High Museum.

Mr. and Mrs. Malon Courts will be hosts at one of the season's largest parties when they entertain at a breakfast at the Piedmont Driving Club preceding the Tech-Georgia football game to be played here on November 29.

The Atlanta Junior League will stage two elaborate parties during the autumn, the first to be the "Follies Dance," either on October 23 or on October 27, the date to be definitely decided later. On December 5 the Junior Leaguers will entertain at an anniversary ball, both parties to be held at the Driving Club.

Climaxing the winter season will be the Nine O'Clocks annual New Year's Eve ball on December 31 to be given at the Driving Club.

WHEN THE BEVY of attractive southern belles is presented to the queen of the annual Cotton Ball in Chattanooga tomorrow evening, among the number will be a group of popular Georgians, including Harriett Callaway, of LaGrange and Atlanta. Harriett will represent her home city, LaGrange, where she moved with her parents, the Harry Callaways, two years ago.

The Chattanooga belles to be presented will wear striking red evening gowns, and those from a distance will wear identical gowns of blue. They will carry unique bouquets fashioned of real cotton bolls, the white of the cotton completing the patriotic color motif of red, white and blue.

Harriett will visit lovely Nancy Moses on Lookout Mountain during her stay in Chattanooga and will return to LaGrange just in time to pack her trunks for her departure for school. She will return Wednesday to National Park in Washington, D. C., for her second year.

A prospective Atlanta debutante, Sue Thomas, of Dalton, will also take a prominent part in the pageantry of the ninth annual Cotton Ball. Sue, the south's newest starlet, has just returned from Hollywood, where she completed a part in the Paramount film, "Reap the Wild Wind." She was presented as a member of the queen's court at the Cotton Ball last September.

THE OTHER DAY a stranger, bearing a large box, walked into British War Relief headquarters and asked to see some one in charge, since she had a gift for the society from an elderly friend who had no way of bringing it there herself.

There was a great deal of excitement when the box was opened, for it contained 108 perfectly knitted afghan squares, one of the most generous gifts ever brought to headquarters. A plain, sealed envelope also was in the box, but when it was opened, the inclosed letter was addressed to "Dear Red Cross."

There were no dampened spirits, however, for the squares were destined to fashion an afghan that eventually would be sent to Great Britain as part of the Red Cross relief quota.

Forthwith, the squares and note were dispatched to Red Cross headquarters, where it was learned that the donor is Mrs. Mattie H. Lyon, of Marietta, who is 90 years young and anxious to do her part toward helping her unknown friends across the sea.

Mrs. Elizabeth King, who is only five years younger than Mrs. Lyon, is another who spends her days knitting for the Red Cross and her unseen English friends. Although she is an invalid, having suffered an injured back, according to information sources at Red Cross headquarters she has knitted more sweaters than they can count!

Miss Bolling Spalding Weds Mr. Winborne at Cathedral

Miss Bolling Phinix Spalding, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hughes Spalding, became the bride of John Wallace Winborne Jr., son of Judge J. W. Winborne, of Raleigh, N. C., at a brilliant afternoon ceremony which took place yesterday at the Cathedral of Christ the King. The Very Reverend Monsignor Joseph E. Moylan officiated at 5:30 o'clock in the presence of a fashionable gathering of relatives and friends of the young couple and many out-of-town guests. A musical program was presented by Julian Barfield.

White tulip-shaped urns filled with white chrysanthemums flanked either side of the altar and from the vases fell cascades of small chrysanthemums and bouvardia. The reserved pews were designated by clusters of white chrysanthemums tied with satin ribbon.

Serving as ushers were Joseph Noyes, of Marion, N. C.; Charles Shaffer, of Burlington, N. C.; William D'Arcy, of St. Louis, Mo.; James Woodson, of Salisbury, N. C., and Jack and Hughes Spalding Jr., brothers of the bride.

Attendants Wear Rose. Mrs. William Ellis Gay, of Pensacola, Fla., was the matron of honor and was becomingly gowned in a Patou model of rose faille fashioned with the new cape effect, edged with venise lace to match. The long torso bodice buttoned down the front and was finished with similar lace which formed a short peplum. The full skirt was floor length. She wore a small pompadour hat by Patou fashioned of rose feathers, and trimmed with feather birds of a deeper shade. Her flowers were a bouquet of Patricia Grace spider chrysanthemums of flesh tints, tied with pale green velvet ribbons.

The bridesmaids were gowned in identical models and included Mrs. Hughes Spalding Jr., Mrs. Strother Fleming Jr., Miss Selma Wright and Miss Leontine Raymond, of Denville, N. J.

The beautiful bride entered with her father, Hughes Spalding, by whom she was given in marriage. They met the groom and his best man, James Finlay Jr., of Chattanooga, Tenn., at the altar.

A dainty brunette, the bride was beautifully gowned in a model of misty tulle fashioned with a fitted bodice of handsome heilloom lace. The long skirt achieved fullness by many layers of tulle which extended to form a voluminous train. Her short veil was attached to her brown hair by an upstanding bow of heilloom lace and finished with a wreath of orange blossoms across the back. She carried a shower bouquet of stephanotis and bouvardia outlined with lace and tied with white velvet streamers.

Mrs. Hughes Spalding, the bride's mother, was handsomely gowned in a claret colored gown in the jewel tones, fashioned with the new square draped neckline and finished with bows at the side. The skirt, made on slim lines, was finished with a draped peplum. Mrs. Spalding wore a profile hat of a matching shade, trimmed in green. Her flowers were orchids.

At the church ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Spalding entertained several hundred guests at an alfresco reception at the Piedmont Driving Club. With the hosts and honor guests in the receiving line were Mrs. Billups Phinix, of Athens, grandmother of the bride, and Judge J. W. Winborne, of Raleigh, father of the groom.

Appointed in Crystal.

The bride's table was exquisite in its appointments of crystal. It was covered with a white satin cloth and decorated with three beautiful arrangements of white lilies, chrysanthemums and bouvardia placed on mirrored discs. Crystal candelabra graced either side of the central arrangement, and place cards for the 20 guests were attached to small white satin slippers. The wedding cake, placed on a smaller table, was three-tiered and decorated with garlands of roses and topped with a miniature white pergola.

The buffet tables placed on the terrace were adorned with silver wine coolers filled with white spider chrysanthemums and snapdragons. The tables were outlined with garlands of maiden hair fern and bouvardia. The punch tables were decorated with garlands of greenery and chrysanthemums.

Mr. Winborne and his bride left for a wedding trip to an unannounced destination, and upon their return they will reside in the Castle Pines apartments. The bride traveled in a handsome two-piece model of imported Scotch tweed in the brown and green tones. Her accessories were brown, and she wore a matching profile hat. Her flowers were bronze orchids.

Out-of-town guests were Judge J. W. Winborne, of Raleigh, N. C.; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Noyes, Mrs. Ralph Alexander, of Marion, N. C.; Mr. and Mrs. Joe Noyes and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Shaffer, of Burlington, N. C.; former Governor and Mrs. Max Gardner, of Shelby, N. C.; Miss Leontine Raymond, of Denville, N. Actors Get Out Oriental Make-Up For Pearl Buck's Novel "China Sky"

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 10.—(INS) Joe E. Brown couldn't have been prouder of receiving the Carnegie medal than he was over being able once more to do a somersault. He was incapacitated for so long following his automobile accident that he called long distance to tell me he pitched ball at Waterloo, Iowa, and did his acrobatic stunts. Joe E. comes back to start "Cowboy Joe" for Columbia in October. With the demand for these comics and the wide-mouthed comedian's popularity, he should get a royal welcome from his many fans.

His mother lives in Toledo and you can imagine his happiness at the way the home town welcomed him. He'll be master of ceremonies at the Governor's dinner in Milwaukee at the American Legion convention and he stops at Dixon to take a part in my day. From Milwaukee he goes to the Louisiana fight to be joined by his son, Don, an instructor at a government flying school at Ontario, Cal.

Ketti Frings' "Hold Back The Dawn" has been a sensation wherever it has been previewed. Apparently it has established her as an author. Now she has written a comedy called "Husbands Are Funny People," about a middle-aged man who falls in love with a young girl and decides to get a new husband for his wife.

MGM has handed the story to Hilton Bren to produce. Miss Frings is certainly versatile when she can turn from a somber epic as "Hold Back The Dawn" to a funny comedy as "Husbands Are Funny People."

RKO has bought Pearl Buck's new novel, "China Sky," the first fiction to reflect at length the Chinese-Japanese war. Well, no other woman writer knows the Orient as well as Mrs. Buck whose "The Good Earth" was a sensation with Luise Rainer. The new story is a romantic-adventure about a man and woman doctor in love who are working in a place which is constantly bombed by Japanese. The man is married to another woman—a Japanese spy. So far there is no cast—but if Luise Rainer could be made up to look as Oriental as she did in "Good Earth," any American actor or actress could play the role.

Chatter in Hollywood: I'm sure most of my readers will remember Veda Ann Borg, the girl whose beauty was restored by plastic surgery after an automobile accident which cruelly disfigured her. Well, Ann has been secretly married since August 30 to Paul Herrick, son of John T. Herrick, an oil magnate and a publisher. They were wed in Yuma and how Veda Ann was able to keep it a secret is one of the current Hollywood surprises. With all the news hounds with their ears to the ground, keeping a secret in movie land is an almost impossible feat.

The Best Vitamin B Is Found In Foods

By Dr. William Brady.

Many times the conductor of this column has urged the superiority of natural vitamin B complex, as it grows in such foods as wheat and other whole grains, fresh lean pork, liver, heart, kidney, peas, eggs, cabbage, tomatoes, fresh or canned, etc., over any pure synthetic vitamin B entity such as thiamin, riboflavin or nicotinic acid, to supplement the diet with a view to preventing or correcting manifestations of vitamin deficiency.

A case described by Dr. Norman Jolliffe illustrates how true this is. A 34-year-old woman who had been an inmate of an institution for five years had scurvy, pellagra and ariboflavinosis (manifestations of deficiency of riboflavin, otherwise called vitamin B2 and vitamin G).

To supplement her diet (consisting chiefly of white rice, white bread, butter, lard, long-cooked vegetables) the patient was given synthetic vitamin C (cevitamic acid, ascorbic acid) and the manifestations of scurvy promptly cleared up. Then she was given nicotinic acid and the scurvy and stomatitis (mouth inflammation) cleared in about 48 hours and the dermatitis (skin inflammation), another sign of pellagra, began to clear up in a week. Then she received riboflavin, and the cheilosis (inflammation of the lip) and angular fissures (cracks about the corners of the mouth) shortly cleared up. Finally she received thiamin (synthetic B1) and her polyneuritis was soon greatly improved. But still, although the patient no longer had the sore mouth, the cheilosis, the dermatitis or the neuritis, she was still a sick person—weak, thin, underweight, pitiable.

Then she was put on a good diet, including plenty of meat, including liver and pork, all kinds of vegetables, real whole wheat bread, a pint of orange juice, other whole grain cereals, milk, butter, cream and eggs. Only refined food in this good diet was a small amount of refined white sugar. (The greater amount of minerals or vitamins with any natural or unrefined sugar would scarcely matter, as the foods mentioned in the good diet are the main sources of such minerals and vitamins.)

Within a month on this diet the patient gained 20 pounds and recovered her strength.

Thus treatment with the pure chemical vitamins is not sufficient. The entire natural B complex is essential for optimal nutrition. Remember, now, this is the teaching of Norman Jolliffe, a recognized nutrition authority, and not just a theory of Brady's. Physicians or other scientific or professional readers who may desire a reference to the original statement by Dr. Jolliffe will receive it by mail if they provide a stamped addressed envelope.

Eczema.
I tried your soluble potassium chloride for a long-standing eczema of my daughter. I gave her five grains three times a day, along with food. In three weeks the skin cleared up and all irritation and scratching ceased. We are certainly grateful to you. We had tried everything without success. (Mrs. L. C.)

Answer:—I am glad to send the monograph "Relief for Allergy" to any reader who provides a stamped envelope bearing his address.

Tuberculosis and Dental Caries.
I have noticed that nearly all the patients in a tuberculosis sanatorium have various teeth. Is there any relation between the weakened condition of such patients and tooth decay? (G. S.)

Answer:—It would seem likely, although I know of no comparison of such patients with the general population in that respect.

Don't Discard Limp Leaves.
Is it true that the limp outer leaves of lettuce, usually thrown away when preparing for table, contain most of the calcium and other nutritive elements? (Mrs. G. L.)

Answer:—Yes, and most of the vitamins too.

Points for Parents

Daughter: "Here are some place cards which I made to surprise you."
Mother: "Thank you, dear. They will provide just the touch of color my table needs."

Daughter: "Aren't you going to use the place cards I painted for you?"
Mother: "Not today, Mrs. Smith is so proper. I want my table to be just right."

Trying to "Get Even" Is Risky Technique

By DIXIE GEORGE.

Dear Dixie:

I have been going with the boy I am engaged to for two years. We have been engaged about five months, but he did not give me my ring until a few weeks ago. I am very much in love with him and he tells me that he feels the same about me. He lives quite a distance from me, but he comes to see me every weekend and once during the week.

When he is away from me he drinks and keeps late hours. I do not want to nag at him, but it would make me happy if he would stop. How can I get him to stop? I do not think he goes with other women for I never hear of it. Do you think I have a right to go off and have a good time when he is away having fun? I do not want our engagement broken up, for we are to be married in a short time.

A READER.
It seems to me, that after two years with this boy, you would know his habits of drinking and staying out late, and would have done something about it before now. If you have not succeeded in stopping his drinking in all these years, I do not think you ever will. He will stop when he is ready and not before. As for his attention to you, I think he has proven how much he loves you, and I think his visits are certainly often enough since he lives in another city.

As for your going out having a good time, I don't think you should do this just because he does it. That is the wrong attitude to take and it will not get you anywhere. Of course, if you want to take drastic steps about his drinking and run the chance of losing him, you could tell him that you would not marry him unless he stops. If he does not drink when he is with you, how do you know he does it when he is away from you? If it is just hearsay, I think I would have facts a bit more definite.

OCCASIONAL REFUSAL MAKES DATES VALUABLE.

Dear Dixie:

I met an attractive young man some time ago. The day I met him he was leaving town and told me that when he came back he wanted to have a date with me. When he came back here he called and we went out. When we came home he asked me for a date two days later. I did not give it to him, for I did not think I should. He is very nice and I enjoy being with him, so I am so worried for fear he will never ask me for a date again. Do you think I did wrong and what can I do to get him back?

HEARTSICK.
It would have been all right to have given him a date the second time, although I do not think if I were you I would give him a date every time he asks you. Make your dates a little bit more valuable by not being on deck every time he asks you. He will appreciate you more. I rather think that you will hear from him again if he is in any way interested and if he enjoyed the first date. There is nothing for you to do but wait. Of course, if you happen to see him and an opportunity presents itself, you can casually mention to him how much you enjoyed the date and to come back again some time. Don't make it too pointed, or too much like you are running after him.

Simple Exercises Preserve A Youthful Throat Line

By Ida Jear, Kan.

Once past 30, it takes more than good posture to keep your throat-line young. You have to exercise for muscle tone, apply creams for a soft, smooth skin, and call on your will power until this extra care acquires the force of habit.

On the average, the throat muscles do not get anything like enough exercise. And, since seven-eighths of the throat column is muscle, it is only natural that such neglect speeds up the sagging—or ageing—process. But, although no part of the figure deteriorates more rapidly from the lack of exercise, a comparatively small amount will suffice to keep it young.

Before we get any deeper into throatline calisthenics, however, let's take up the matter of creams as lubricants and wrinkle discouragers. It seems to be especially helpful to cleanse the throat thoroughly with cream and to leave on a thin film while exercising. Afterwards, remove all trace of the cream and splash the neck and chin with cold water. Friction and massage are also beauty aids.

In massaging, apply plenty of cream to hands and throat, and work from the base of the throat upward, separating hands just under the chin, then working outward along the jawline. When you have astranged.

There is a secret to exercising the throat muscles effectively and this is it: Slowly tense all muscles as the movements are performed, maintain the tension throughout the movement, and, afterward, slowly but completely relax the muscles.

Here is a good throat exercise: Tip the head back, open the mouth to capacity, then, resisting strongly with the muscles of the lower jaw, close. Repeat three times and make sure that you observe the rule for tensing and relaxing.

Another good one is to tip the head slowly backward and circle slowly around from one shoulder to the other, as if you were watching a fast-circling plane. Continue for three revolutions, all throat muscles tensed, then straighten and slowly relax.

It so happens that one of the most strenuous chin and throat exercises is also one of the best. You lie on your back on the bed, crossways, with head lowered over the side. Tense throat muscles to slowly raise head until it is in line with the spine, hold for a second, and slowly lower and relax. This may be repeated six times, with pauses at intervals.

This extra beauty care is recommended to any woman who has always trusted to posture to maintain a clear, youthful throatline. But for you a better head carriage may be the starting point. Unless you carry your head high, with throat stretched and chin level, you may have to concentrate on such simple measures as working with your neck muscles supporting your head so that it does not go forward, and in sleeping without a pillow, and in doing alignment exercises.

You will find excellent hints in the leaflets, "Posture Makes the Figure" and "Let's Chin Awkward," which will be sent you on receipt of a stamped return envelope. Mail requests to Ida Jean Kain, The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga.

Q. So many speakers bore; how can I avoid their mistakes?

MY DAY: Some Thoughts After Death

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

HYDE PARK, Tuesday.—Death is always a revealing thing. As I looked at Mrs. Roosevelt's face in the repose which comes after death, I understood many things which the animation and play of expression in everyday life probably prevented one from seeing. The lines were smoothed out, the stark beauty of contour and the peace which death alone can bring were revealed.

I think that today everything was done as she would have wished it. She liked simplicity. She loved her own home and her own place. On her coffin there rested only the spray of flowers made from flowers grown in her own garden and greenhouse, by the gardener who has been with her well over 40 years.

Around were banded the floral offerings which paid tribute to her kindness and affection for many individuals, and to her faithful service in many organizations. I think she would have been just as pleased with the flowers which came as a tribute of sympathy to her son.

In the room she liked so well, the rector, Mr. Wilson, read the simple but beautiful Episcopal service, and the church choir sang two hymns which she always liked to sing. The men on the place carried the casket and there were more flowers which one of her nieces, Miss Laura Delano, arranged around the grave.

She had long contemplated this final resting place beside her husband. I think she had an affection for the tree and the familiar countryside around this old church and for this spot in the churchyard, where she had so often gone to lay flowers on the grave of her husband.

She would have liked to have just the family and friends who were here about her. I wish that all the grandchildren could have been present, but it was fortunate at a time like this, that so many could pay her this last tribute of respect and love.

I think everyone is conscious of the fact that the house and place in which she lived so long will never be quite the same without her. She was a strong personality and left an imprint not only on the people she knew so well, but on the surroundings which she created.

My husband has as great a devotion to the place as his mother had, but it is different, I think. She thought that the land was tied with her family forever. With him, there are memories of youth and of his parents which can never be obliterated, but he does not count on the same kind of future that she liked to plan.

Lookouts Score Five in Sixth To Win, 7 to 2, and Extend Series

All in The Game

BY JACK TROY

Managerial Changes The Southern League will have a different managerial set-up in 1942, but there may not be so many new faces.

The word is that Doc Prothro, who definitely is coming back to the Southern League, will return to Little Rock as manager. It first was reported he'd go to Memphis. But the present Philly pilot seems certain to return to Arkansas, where he's very popular.

Bert Niehoff, present Little Rock manager, is said to be in line to manage Birmingham. Oscar Roettger has resigned. Niehoff did a fine job with a minimum of material and it is believed that he could make a pennant contender out of Birmingham, using talent supplied by the Cincinnati Reds.

The Reds, incidentally, are elated over the increase of fan interest in Birmingham. President Paul Florence has seen tangible evidence that a winner will bring 'em back to life.

Knoxville draws well each season and must have a manager to succeed Fred Lindstrom, resigned. There is talk that Atlanta's Emile Mailho may be given a chance. Mailho probably is the league's most popular performer and would give the Smokies both a clever player and a fine leader.

The other changes expected in the Southern League are at Memphis and Chattanooga. Truck Harnah is reported on the way out as Chick pilot after a highly disappointing year and there is some question of the Lookouts starting out a full season under Sparky Olsen, who succeeded Ki Ki Cuyler. Sparky, however, has done an excellent job.

The re-signing of Manager Paul Richards here in Atlanta is regarded as a mere formality. Larry Gilbert names his own terms at Nashville, and Ray Blades, finishing third his first year in the Southern League, is a cinch to return to New Orleans unless the Cardinal chain gives him a better job.

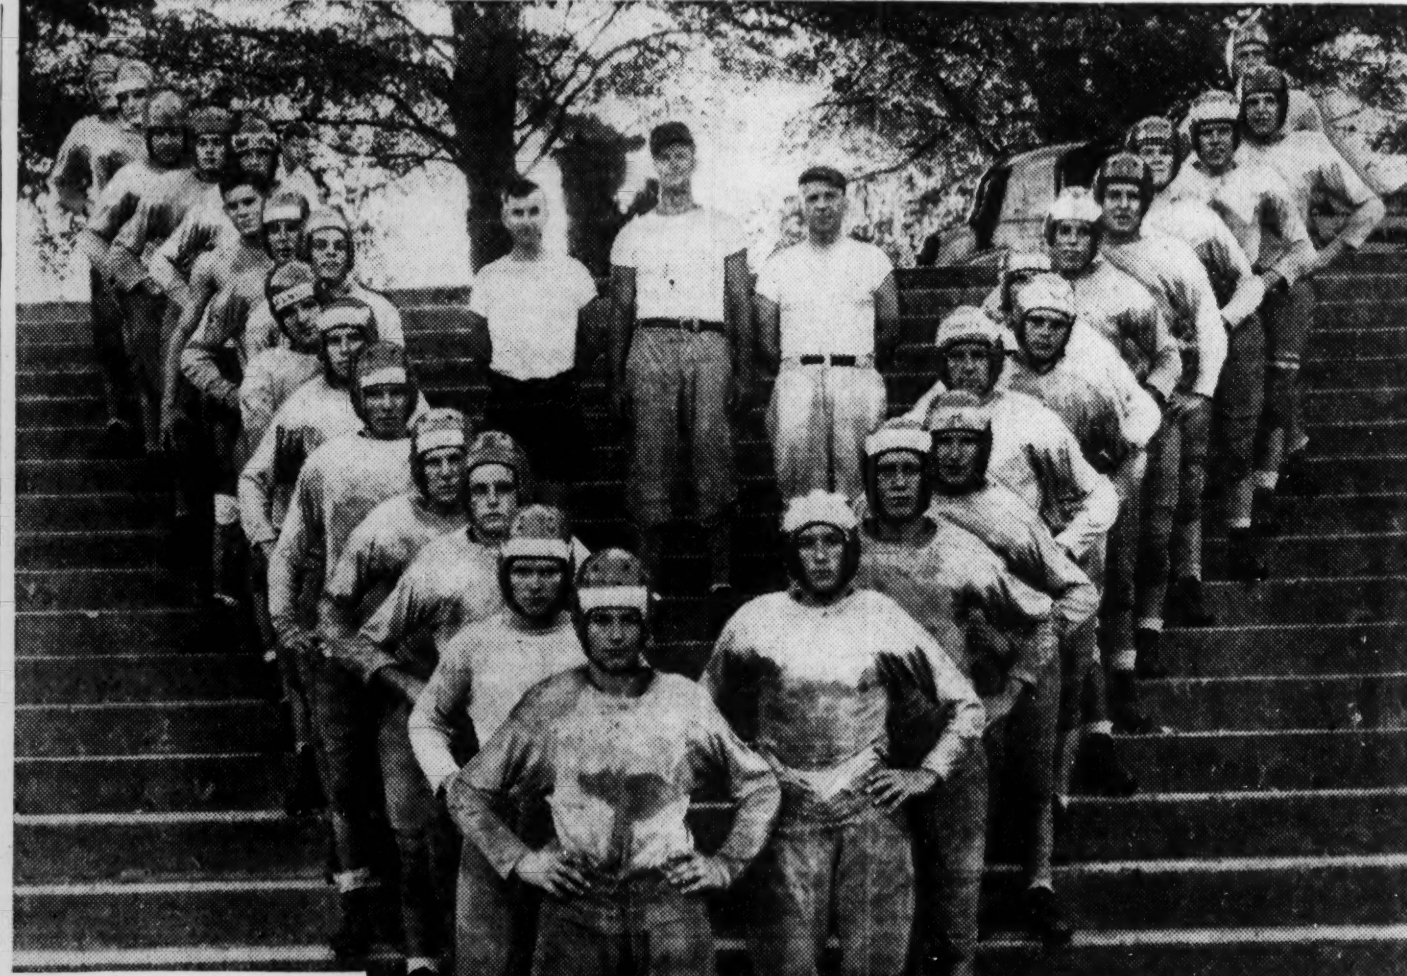

Onkle Sunkel The return of "Blind Tom" Sunkel to the big leagues reminds us of one mistake Ray Blades made as manager of the St. Louis Cardinals. Blades wouldn't pitch Sunkel because the vision in his left eye was impaired.

Sunkel was a great winner with Atlanta with the same eye condition. Manager Paul Richards used him freely. Sunkel thrived on work. Blades used him sparingly and consequently figured he couldn't pitch. Too much rest hurt his control.

Writers even went to great lengths to point out he was blind in one eye, and blamed that for Blades' reluctance to use him. It ought to be pretty well known by now, however, that Onkle Tom Sunkel pitches with his left arm—not his eye.

And if Colonel Bill Terry, who has just taken Sunkel

Lack of Subs Slows Bulldogs In Scrimmage

ATHENS, Ga., Sept. 10.—Georgia's woeful lack of reserves couldn't have been more stunningly emphasized than it was today when Coach Wallace Butts drove his charges through an hour's scrimmage.

The stocky little Bulldog mentor had excused four boys from practice and two or three others looked on from the sidelines because of injuries, the result being one or two men were forced to scrimmage at three positions most of the day.

Missing were George Poschner, Earl Marshall and Brooker Blanton, who were in Atlanta taking a CAA flying exam; "Duck" Conner, who was called to Atlanta for a review of his classification in the draft, and J. C. Miller and Jim Todd, both of whom watched from the sidelines because of injuries. Tommy Malone and Andy Dudish are slightly hurt and did not scrimmage.

ENDS OVERWORKED.

Bill Gill, Van Davis, Andy Anderson and "Chuck" Christian were the only ends available, and Christian, shifted from wingback the first day of practice, still hasn't caught on the various assignments an end must know to make the offense click, and as a result the sturdy Gill had a tough afternoon.

Lamar Davis and little "Nub" Welch had to do most of the wingbacking because Dudish sprained his thumb and can't handle the ball well. He scrimmaged, but most of his work was on defense.

Rugged Cliff Kimsey, who may be headed for his best year at Georgia, did overtime duty at blocking back, too.

WEAK ON RESERVE.

Coach Butts, after the practice was over, declared: "I knew we were weak on reserves, but I never realized just how weak until today. Why we had a hard time keeping 11 men out there all the time."

As a whole, the scrimmage, first of any length this year, was fairly satisfactory, however.

Frankie Sinkwich, Captain Heyward Allen and sophomore Fullback Dick McPhee got away for many nice gains, with McPhee probably running the hardest of all.

Big Van Davis, destined for regular duty at right end, looked great several times catching the ball.

VAN DAVIS GREAT.

The way he was plucking them out of the air and going places reminded many observers of his freshman year when he was an everyday nemesis to varsity pass defenders. Last year, the Elberton husky was retarded by knee injuries that slowed him up, but this time he looks like he's headed for a great season.

Terry Nunnally, Athens sophomore wingback, was injured during the rough work, but otherwise there were only the usual minor bruises and sore spots.

Stout Falters, Walks Five In 6th Inning

Burge Homers; Lochbaum Faces Burrows Tonight.

By JACK TROY.
Constitution Sports Editor.
Potent pitching by Crip Polli prolonged the first round of the Chattanooga-Atlanta playoff last night. Polli allowed only three hits as the Lookouts captured the third game, 7 to 2.

Contributing to the continuation of the series almost as much as Polli's potent pitching was the puny performance of Allyn Stout. The Lookouts may have set a record when they scored five runs in the sixth on only one hit. The Crackers made no errors. Stout simply walked five, and Rene Cortes, his successor, issued two more passes before he could be removed.

So the Lookouts, trailing 1 to 0 going into the sixth, emerged with a winning lead without exerting themselves very much. Earle Browne's single drove in a couple of runners. The others walked home. Ed Heusser walked off the bench, threw a couple of warm-up pitches and got the side out.

The Crackers changed around so much in an effort to get back into the game that they finally finished with Floyd Strome on the mound and the Lookouts produced a couple more runs in the ninth.

Fourth game of the playoff series will be played tonight with Lefty Burrows expected to face

The Crackers still need only one game to end the series and enter the final round against New Orleans or Nashville.

For a time last night it looked as if Les Burge's thirty-ninth home run of the year might provide a winning tally. But after blanking the Lookouts for five innings, Stout blew higher than the latest-type stratosphere balloon in the sixth. It was in this eventful frame that Manager Paul Richards was chased for the second straight night when he questioned Umpire

Tamulis Bests Jurisich, 1 to 0; Vols Lead, 2-1

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 10.—(P)—Vito Tamulis, Nashville southpaw, aided by brilliant fielding, calmed New Orleans, 1 to 0, tonight to give the Vols a 2-to-1 edge in the semifinals of the Southern Association playoff.

Al Jurisich pitched for the Pels and did a good job despite some bad breaks. Tamulis, however, came through in the pinches and was able to stand some of the locals on their heads with men on base.

The Vols scored the only tally of the game in the seventh when Culler scratched a hit and advanced on Hank Self's single. With two out, Culler stole third and scored when Richards, Pel third sacker, missed Catcher Grilks' perfect throw.

Oris Hockett, Vol centerfielder, made a spectacular headlong catch in the eighth after Triplett had doubled, to stifle a Pelican rally. The teams will play here again tomorrow night, with George Jeffcoat slated to pitch for Nashville and Hank Nowak for New Orleans.

CLAWS OF THE TIGER—On these four backs much of the success of the Auburn Tigers will depend this year. As veterans, they must carry much of the offensive load for Coach Jack Meagher. Left to right are Clarence Harkins (with ball), Ty Irby, Charlie Finney and Captain Lloyd Cheatham, who is the only senior back on the team. Cheatham was voted the outstanding blocker in the conference in 1940.

Meagher Expects Tiger Team To Be 'as Good as Last Year'

Tiger Coach Hoping for Better Record Than in '40; Sophs Jenkins, Clayton, Wilkes and Pharr Look Good.

By JOHNNY BRADBERRY, Assistant Sports Editor.

AUBURN, Ala., Sept. 10.—This time last football season Irish Jack Meagher, soft-spoken coach of the Auburn team, was looking forward to one of his best years at the Tiger school.

But an unprecedented run of injuries and other misfortunes gradually killed Meagher's optimism about his ball club and the won-lost record was not as good as it should have been.

This year, a lot of things have happened, and the material at Auburn is not quite as promising as it was. But Meagher is still an optimist, and is looking forward to a good season.

As photographers from Atlanta, Columbus and Birmingham snapped pictures during a "dress rehearsal" here this afternoon, Irish Jack sat on the sidelines and told reporters in his soft voice that the Tigers "would develop and be at least as good as last year."

BETTER RECORD. "If we have any luck in regard to injuries," he said, "I expect a better record than last year. But if last year's club had been able to be at full strength throughout the schedule, I seriously doubt if we would be any better this fall."

What Jack means is the 1940 team was made up of more promising material than the 1941 outfit.

However, he was by no means pessimistic about his team. "We will have at least one experienced man at every position except ends where only Letterman James Samford is returning. Several sophomores have been looking good and we'll have to depend on them for replacements."

Among the sophs fans have taken a liking to Buck Jenkins and Don Wilkes, halfbacks; Aubrey Clayton, quarterback, and Jim Pharr, center.

Jenkins, who weighs only 165 pounds, is a good passer and punter, and will see plenty of service before the season ends.

CHEATHAM BACK. Chief among the returning lettermen is Captain Lloyd Cheatham, probably the best blocker in the Southeastern conference.

The blond Nauvoo (Ala.) boy was awarded a trophy last season as being the outstanding blocker in the league, and is all set for a banner year.

There are plenty of good backs on the squad, despite the loss of Bill Yearout, and the team won't be lacking with such fellows as Ty Irby, Jim Reynolds, Clarence Harkins, Charlie Finney and Monk Gafford around.

Incidentally, Cheatham is the only senior back on the squad. The line will be led by two fine tackles, Alternate Captain Francis Crimmins and John Chalkley, who was hurt the last part of the 1940 season. Nick Ardillo and Max Morris return at guards and Tex Williams at center.

Lieutenant Porter Grant, ex-end coach, but now in the Army, was one of the spectators at the photographers' drill. Porter brought over several horses for the players to mount for pictures. He stuck around mainly to see one of them get thrown, but was disappointed.

Jimmy Hiltchcock, backfield coach, is very pleased over Brother Billy's sale to the Detroit Tigers. Billy had a great year at third base for the Kansas City Blues.

The playing field in Auburn's new stadium is in tip-top condition. The first home game of the season, against Louisiana Poly, will be played October 11.

Automatic Pay Boost Plan To Go to Council

1,200 City Workers Would Be Affected by Institution of System

Institution of a system of automatic increments for municipal employees affecting about 1,200 next year and costing the municipality about $40,000 for 1941 will be offered to city council as soon as B. Graham West, city comptroller, completes working details, it was said yesterday.

Sought since civil service was instituted more than two years ago as a complement of abolition of a "spoils system" in employment of city workers, the plan, advanced by Councilman John A. White, finance committee chairman, would extend over a period of years until efficient and faithful employees progress from minimum salaries to maximums as provided in a salary schedule already adopted by city council.

Under the program, workers making less than $100 a month would be advanced $7.50 each pay day each year until they reach the maximums which already have been established, and those making over $100 a month would be raised $5 a year each pay day until their maximums are reached. No raise would be given any employee unless recommended by the department head, but if recommended, the increase would be automatic.

Completion by Fall. The measure also will deduct from 1941 increments all raises allowed for 1940. Thus if an employee in the lower bracket obtained a $2.50 a month raise for 1940, instead of getting his full $7.50 for next year, the $2.50 allowed for 1940 would be deducted, allowing a 1941 increase of only $5.

White said the program will not be completed in time for submission to Monday's council session, but added it will be ready for action during the fall, and if approved will become operative as of January 1, 1941.

Insisting that some method must be devised to take employees from minimums to maximums in a logical sequence without political pressure, White contended that council itself would "do well" to pass the proposal to get rid of a semi-annual headache. Under the city charter, salaries may be raised in January and in July, and there always is a clamor for increases, usually backed by employee organizations and by what are known as "political pets" of the administration then in power.

Automatic Increases. When jobs were classified more than a year ago, the Public Administration Service, Chicago, nationally known organization which made the studies, recommended a system of automatic salary increases, but it never was adopted by the previous administration and no definite action has yet been taken under the LeCraw regime.

The city personnel board, labor leaders and others contend that salary adjustments upward should be placed on a scientific basis rather than made haphazardly and in the main favor the White proposal. Mayor LeCraw has insisted that the city probably will not have sufficient funds to make any large hikes in salary accounts during the new year, but White and supporters of the salary raise plan are proceeding with the program.

FSA Transfers W. J. Davis Jr.

William J. Davis Jr., former Atlanta lawyer and for three years assistant loan officer for the Fifth Regional Farm Security Administration at Montgomery, Ala., has been appointed to the staff of the regional director of Region 1 at Upper Darby, Pa.

Davis has been associated with the rural rehabilitation program since its beginning under the New Deal, going to Montgomery with Philip Welter when the regional offices were established there.

He will serve as procedure coordinator of Region 1, associated with James H. Wood, who until three months ago was associate director of Region 5.

Man Held in Burglaries At 4 Druid Hills Homes

DeKalb county police yesterday were holding a man listed as William E. Larisey, 31, of 881 Oglethorpe avenue, on charges of burglarizing four houses in the Druid Hills residential section. Lieutenant Dewitt Wingo and Investigator John W. Jones said some $500 worth of jewelry, clothes, and other articles were recovered from pawnshops in Atlanta and Anniston, Ala.

Larisey admitted the burglaries, police said. He was paroled June 15 while serving a sentence for forgery and automobile theft. It was thought he studied the location of his victims' homes while working on convict road projects in Druid Hills.

CIO's Philip Murray To Convalesce in N. J.

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 10.—(AP)—Philip Murray, president of the Congress of Industrial Organizations, who was stricken by a heart attack July 13 on a family outing, left Mercy hospital yesterday and went to a New Jersey resort to convalesce. Associates said they expected him to return to his duties within three weeks.

HALF-HOLIDAYS CONTINUE.

ATHENS, Ga., Sept. 10.—(AP)—Those weekly half-holidays enjoyed by store employees through the summer are just as much fun in the fall, so 18 retail food stores here agreed to continue the Wednesday afternoon closing. The experiment will be extended indefinitely, merchants said.

Turner Search Is Pushed After Finding Bullet-Riddled Car

The search for Forrest Turner and "Slim" Scarborough turned southward yesterday after the discovery in Parrot, Ga., of a bullet-riddled car believed to have been used by the men in the holdup of the Airport liquor store in Hapeville Monday night.

Another holdup was also reported at the Half Way House, tourist camp on U. S. Highway 19, about 12 miles from Butler, Ga., according to the State Patrol. Two men were said to have entered the establishment late Tuesday night and to have taken $30 in small change and $70 in bills from the proprietor.

Police suspect the pair, who escaped last month from "Little Alcatraz," state prison at Dallas, may be headed toward Florida.

The car recovered yesterday was a 1941 Ford coupe, which had been completely riddled with buckshot. Patrolmen said it was the same car fired on several times by Fulton county policemen in a chase after the Hapeville robbery, in which $250 was taken.

In the automobile was a driver's license and wallet identified by Milton Woodbury, of Bainbridge, as having been taken from him August 19 by two men he said he positively identified as Turner and Scarborough. The men also took Woodbury's car, a 1941 Buick sedan.

A cache of 700 jade axes, pendants, ear plugs and other objects of jade was recently unearthed in southeastern Mexico.
